DISCOUNT AND ADVANCE RATES -- Requests by twelve Reserve Banks to maintain the existing primary credit rate; requests to renew the secondary and seasonal credit formulas.

Existing rate and formulas approved.
February 8, 2021.

Today, Board members discussed economic and financial developments and issues related to possible policy actions. In connection with this discussion, Board members considered discounts and advances under the primary credit program (the primary credit rate) and discussed, on a preliminary basis, their individual assessments of the appropriate rate and its communication, which would be discussed at the next joint meeting of the Board and the Federal Open Market Committee.

Subject to review and determination by the Board of Governors, the directors of the Federal Reserve Banks of Boston, New York, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, and San Francisco had voted on January 28, 2021, and the directors of the Federal Reserve Banks of Philadelphia, Richmond, Atlanta, and Dallas had voted on February 4, to establish the primary credit rate at the existing level of 0.25 percent.

No sentiment was expressed by the Board at today's meeting for changing the primary credit rate at this time, and the Board approved the establishment of the primary credit rate at the existing level of 0.25 percent. The Board's action today on the primary credit rate also included renewal of the existing formulas for calculating the rates applicable to discounts and advances under the secondary and seasonal credit programs for all twelve Reserve Banks. As specified by the formula for the secondary credit rate, this rate would be set 50 basis points above the primary credit rate. As specified by the formula for the seasonal credit rate, this rate would be reset every two weeks as the average of the daily effective federal funds rate and the rate on three-month CDs over the previous 14 days, rounded to the nearest 5 basis points.

Voting for this action: Chair Powell, Vice Chair for Supervision Quarles, and Governors Brainard, Bowman, and Waller.

Background: Office of the Secretary memorandum, February 5, 2021.

Implementation: Transmissions from Ms. Misback to the Reserve Banks, February 8, 2021.

DISCOUNT AND ADVANCE RATES -- Requests by twelve Reserve Banks to maintain the existing primary credit rate; requests to renew the secondary and seasonal credit formulas.

Existing rate and formulas approved.
March 8, 2021.

Today, Board members discussed economic and financial developments and issues related to possible policy actions. In connection with this discussion, Board members considered discounts and advances under the primary credit program (the primary credit rate) and discussed, on a preliminary basis, their individual assessments of the appropriate rate and its communication, which would be discussed at the joint meeting of the Board and the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) next week.

Subject to review and determination by the Board of Governors, the directors of the Federal Reserve Banks of Boston, Cleveland, and Kansas City had voted on February 25, 2021, and the directors of the Federal Reserve Banks of New York, Philadelphia, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Dallas, and San Francisco had voted on March 4, to establish the primary credit rate at the existing level of 0.25 percent.

Overall, Federal Reserve Bank directors reported that the economic recovery had gained some momentum over recent weeks, due in large part to vaccine developments and the prospect of additional fiscal support. Several directors observed that the housing market remained strong, noting increases in mortgage originations and residential construction. A pickup in consumer spending occurred in certain Districts, with some directors noting gains in apparel sales as well as an uptick in openings of discount stores. Activity in other sectors--including dining and hospitality--remained weak. Many directors expected inflation to move up to or slightly above 2 percent over coming years. Directors were generally optimistic about the economic outlook, although uncertainty surrounding the outlook remained elevated.

The directors of all twelve Federal Reserve Banks favored maintaining the current primary credit rate at the existing level (0.25 percent). In light of the uncertainties associated with the pandemic, the directors judged that it would be appropriate for the FOMC to maintain the current stance of policy to continue to support economic recovery and foster progress toward the FOMC's long-run goals of maximum employment and stable prices.

No sentiment was expressed by the Board at today's meeting for changing the primary credit rate at this time, and the Board approved the establishment of the primary credit rate at the existing level of 0.25 percent. The Board's action today on the primary credit rate also included renewal of the existing formulas for calculating the rates applicable to discounts and advances under the secondary and seasonal credit programs for all twelve Reserve Banks. MONETARY POLICY IMPLEMENTATION -- Interest rate on required and excess reserve balances unchanged; rates on discounts and advances unchanged; renewal of secondary and seasonal credit formulas.

Approved.
March 17, 2021.

In a joint meeting of the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) and the Board today, the FOMC decided to maintain the target range for the federal funds rate at 0 to 1/4 percent, effective March 18, 2021. Consistent with the FOMC's decision to leave the target range for the federal funds rate unchanged, the Board approved maintaining the interest rate (0.10 percent) paid on required and excess reserve balances, effective March 18, 2021. At today's meeting, the Board also approved the establishment of the interest rate on discounts and advances made under the primary credit program (the primary credit rate) at the existing level (0.25 percent).

Subject to review and determination by the Board of Governors, the directors of the Federal Reserve Banks of Boston, Cleveland, Atlanta, Kansas City, and Dallas had voted on March 11, 2021, to establish the primary credit rate at the existing level of 0.25 percent.
