

From: Edward Papier
To: FOMC-Regs-Comments
Subject: Changes FOIA rules for the FOMC
Date: Thursday, October 15, 2020 11:35:46 AM

---

NONCONFIDENTIAL // EXTERNAL

You're obviously getting your ducks in a row for when the lawsuits and subpoenas start to fly. This is banana republic stuff and is the reason no US citizen trusts the Fed any longer. Section 1103 of Dodd-Frank requires 13(3) funding facility data to be publicly released a year after the facility is terminated or two years after lending has ceased, whichever comes first. Fed Chairman Jerome Powell has repeatedly testified before Congress that the Fed would be providing full transparency now on these programs. If you believe that, I've got a bridge for sale. You've given $9 trillion cumulatively to trading houses on Wall Street from September 17, 2019 through March of this year. The Fed has yet to release one detail about what specific trading houses got the money and how much each got. The changes you propose for FOIA clearly suggests you're contemplating the day you're sued for this information or Congress or the courts issue subpoenas. Deep state stuff at its best.

Edward Papier