DISCOUNT AND ADVANCE RATES -- Establishment without change by twelve Reserve Banks of the existing primary credit rate.

Existing rate maintained.
April 27, 2009.

Subject to review and determination by the Board of Governors, the directors of the Federal Reserve Banks of New York, Chicago, Minneapolis, and Kansas City had voted on April 16, 2009, and the directors of the Federal Reserve Banks of Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, St. Louis, Dallas, and San Francisco had voted on April 23 to reestablish the existing rate for discounts and advances (1/2 percent) under the primary credit program (primary credit rate).

Federal Reserve Bank directors expressed continued concern about the economic outlook. The economy appeared to be still contracting, and some directors noted particular concern about the implications of weakness in the labor market. Their concerns were tempered to a small extent by incipient signs that the contraction in the economy could be slowing. Other directors believed that activity in some sectors -- household spending in particular -- could be stabilizing, albeit at low levels. Most directors viewed inflation as stable at a low rate for now. The directors generally agreed on the need for continued monetary stimulus in order to promote a return of economic activity to its potential over a reasonable time horizon, and to this end, they recommended maintaining the current primary credit rate.

Today, Board members considered the primary credit rate in light of this week's meeting of the Federal Open Market Committee. No sentiment was expressed for changing the primary credit rate before the Committee's meeting, and the existing rate was maintained.

Participating in this determination: Chairman Bernanke, Vice Chairman Kohn, and Governors Warsh, Duke, and Tarullo.
