Comments:

Many people do not know they are short on cash until they get the overdraft notice in the mail. By then, they've already made other purchases that end up being charged the fees as well. This is an unfair practice. I for one would want to know when I'm going over my limit, so I can determine what error has been made (mine or the bank's) & get it corrected. If additional money needs to be deposited, many people have savings accounts to transfer funds from, saving them from the fees & the embarrassment.
