

From: Kate Myers
Subject: Electronic Fund Transfers

Comments:

As someone who was a victim of overdraft fees - that I didn't even know existed - on my bank account a few years ago, I would support switching to an Opt-In system for overdraft protection. I do not think that banks do a good job of informing customers (especially new, younger customers) of these fees and what they can do. An opt-in system makes banks required to tell their customers about it when signing them up for a check card.

--

Kate Myers