"In 2007 alone, banks and credit unions collected $17.5 billion from overdraft fees", according to the nonprofit Center for Responsible Lending. Wow, that is a lot of money. I just don't understand how someone can go to there bank and withdraw money that they don't even have and the bank teller at the window just hand them the money without telling you that you have zero dollars in your account. Then there going to charge you an overdraft fee, that is very disturbing to me. How can they automatically sign you up for overdraft programs? Thats just expletive deleted..., I GUESS ANYWAY YOU CAN MAKE AN EXTRA DOLLAR! I hope you feel good about yourselves, taking advantage of people.
