I believe thje system needs over hauling" banks have given themselves the rights to imposed overdraft fees" on such purchases as a two dollar purchase at a local store and if your account does not have the funds? they impose a thirty five dollar fee"? its crazy" !! ive been assed many fees throughout the year" and i strongly believe yes it is our responsibility to maintain a positive account" but the limit or amount of the allowed fee a bank should charge? should be cut to one set fee" thirty five dollars for a two dollar purchase is alittle bit crazy you think?? so i suggest perhaps if banks are limited to paying only two transaction after an account is over drawn? and fees should not exceeed more then twenty dollars " that should be the maxium amount allowed and regulated many americans are getting hammered by these fees and in this economy this will help all consumers " thank you steven federico
