I am an elderly woman who on occasion has had an open-end loan and the burden that will be put on me if my credit union has to move all the due dates to a time in the month to meet the regulation has not been thought out. I know when my payments are due and they are set up to come out of my SS check each month. If my credit union has to move my due date to comply, how does that help me? I think credit cards needed the change but not all open-end loans. Please reconsider including all open-end loans. Thank you.
