Comments:

If I actually od my acct when the pending trans are posted then I can understand the od fees but if it is due to an unexpected electronic payment and then occur fees on pending items prior to the trans posting on my acct then that makes me angry. I had money in my acct when 2 pending trans posted to my acct. MY acct was not od..the bank did not pay out money that was not in my acct. I got 2 35.00 od fees taken out of my available PRIOR to the items posting. That is wrong and then they didnt reverse them. I work for a bank and as long as the money is in the acct when they actually post there is not od fee. Bank of America is taking advantage of the customer and taking money on money they did not pay out.
