I'm against banks paying the largest amount first to increase the likelihood of an overdraft. I want to have the ability to have more control over my finances and not pay ridiculous fees. In the same way I have to keep better track of my account balances to prevent this from happening. The banks are profiting from loaning us money but this in turn cripples the consumers who are living paycheck to paycheck & who puts them behind on bills and some consumers are just walking away from overdrawn bank accounts.
