Re: Request for Comment Deadline Extension on Volcker Rule Proposed Regulations

The undersigned trade associations¹ respectfully request that the Agencies extend the deadline for comments on their proposed regulations under the Volcker Rule. Our members are deeply concerned about the potential impact of the proposal on capital formation, markets and liquidity for a range of asset classes and on the safety and soundness of banking entities and the businesses in which they engage, especially in light of current market conditions and the state of the US and EU economies. The fact that more than 1400 questions have been asked by the Agencies in the proposal signal that, despite the Agencies' conscientious and thoughtful efforts in composing the proposal, many key issues remain unsettled. Our members are devoting significant time to understanding the proposal, including its global impact, actively discussing the proposal and working together to generate thoughtful comments. and policy of the statutory text of the Volcker Rule, they have been working together to craft appropriate suggestions for the Agencies.

Moreover, as you know, the CFTC has not yet published its notice of proposed rulemaking, nor has the CFTC stated how its proposal will align, or not, with the proposal already released by the Agencies. The futures and swaps markets regulated by the CFTC will be significantly impacted by the Volcker Rule, as will affiliates and subsidiaries of banking entities for which the CFTC is the primary financial regulatory agency. Since the Agencies are required by statute to consult and coordinate with each other in developing and issuing implementing rules for the purposes of assuring, to the extent possible, that such rules are comparable and provide for consistent application and implementation, we believe it would be appropriate to permit covered banking entities and other stakeholders sufficient time to understand and respond to the proposed rules of all five agencies charged with implementing the Volcker Rule.

As a result, we respectfully request that the Agencies extend the deadline for comments on the Volcker Rule regulations proposal to the later of 90 days after the current deadline of January 13th or to 60 days after the CFTC releases its proposed regulations.

Respectfully submitted,
