

Regulation CC

Availability of Funds and Collection of Checks

Background

Regulation CC (12 CFR 229) implements two laws—the Expedited Funds Availability Act (EFA Act), which was enacted in August 1987 and became effective in September 1988, and the Check Clearing for the 21st Century Act (Check 21), which was enacted in October 2003 and became effective on October 28, 2004. The regulation sets forth the requirements that depository institutions make funds deposited into transaction accounts available according to specified time schedules and that they disclose their funds availability policies to their customers. It also establishes rules designed to speed the collection and return of unpaid checks and describes requirements that affect banks that create or receive substitute checks, including requirements related to consumer disclosures and expedited recredit procedures.

Regulation CC contains four subparts. The first three implement the EFA Act, and the fourth implements Check 21. Specifically,

- Subpart A—Defines terms and provides for administrative enforcement
- Subpart B—Specifies availability schedules, or time frames within which banks must make funds available for withdrawal; also includes rules concerning exceptions to the schedules, disclosure of funds availability policies, and payment of interest
- Subpart C—Sets forth rules concerning the expeditious return of checks, the responsibilities of paying and returning banks, authorization of direct returns, notification of nonpayment of large-dollar returns by the paying bank, check-endorsement standards, and other related changes to the check-collection system
- Subpart D—Contains provisions concerning the requirements a substitute check must meet to be the legal equivalent of an original check; bank duties, warranties, and indemnities associated with substitute checks; expedited recredit procedures for consumers and banks; and consumer disclosures regarding substitute checks

The appendixes to the regulation provide additional information:

- Appendixes A and B—Routing number guide
- Appendix C—Model forms and clauses that banks may use to meet their disclosure responsibilities under the regulation

- Appendix D—Standards for check endorsement by banks

SUBPART A—GENERAL

Definitions—Section 229.2

Bank

The term bank refers to FDIC-insured banks, mutual savings banks, savings banks, and savings associations; federally insured credit unions; non-federally insured banks, credit unions, and thrift institutions; agencies and branches of foreign banks; and Federal Home Loan Bank (FHLB) members.

For purposes of subparts C and D, “bank” also includes any person engaged in the business of banking, Federal Reserve Banks, FHLBs, and state and local governments to the extent that the government unit pays checks.

For purposes of subpart D only, “bank” also refers to the U.S. Treasury and the U.S. Postal Service (USPS) to the extent that they act as payors.

- The term paying bank applies to any bank at which or through which a check is payable and to which it is sent for payment or collection. For purposes of subpart D, “paying bank” also includes the U.S. Treasury and the USPS. The term also includes Federal Reserve Banks, FHLBs, state and local governments, and, if the check is not payable by a bank, the bank through which a check is payable.
- A reconverting bank is the bank that creates a substitute check or is the first bank to transfer or present a substitute check to another party.

Check

The term check includes both original checks and substitute checks.¹

- An original check is the first paper check issued with respect to a particular payment transaction.
- A substitute check is a paper reproduction of an original check that
 - Contains an image of the front and back of the original check,
 - Bears a MICR line containing all of the

1. The term “check” does not include checks drawn in a foreign currency or checks drawn on a bank located outside the United States.

information encoded on the original check's MICR line, except as provided in the industry standard for substitute checks,²

- Conforms in dimension, paper stock, and otherwise with industry standards for substitute checks, and
- Is suitable for automated processing in the same manner as the original check.

A substitute check for which a bank has provided the warranties described in section 229.52 is the legal equivalent of an original check if the substitute check accurately represents all of the information on the front and back of the original check and bears the legend "This is a legal copy of your check. You can use it the same way you would use the original check."

- A copy of an original check is any paper reproduction of an original check, including a paper printout of an electronic image, a photocopy, or a substitute check. A sufficient copy is a copy of an original check that accurately represents all of the information on the front and back of the check at the time of truncation or is otherwise sufficient to establish the validity of a claim.
- Truncate means to remove an original check from the forward collection or return process and replace it with a substitute check or, by agreement, information relating to the original check. The truncating bank may or may not choose to provide subsequent delivery of the original check.
- A local check is a check deposited in a depository bank that is located in the same Federal Reserve check-processing region as the paying bank. A nonlocal check is a check deposited in a check-processing region different from that of the paying bank.

Account

For purposes of subparts B and C, an account is a "deposit" (as defined in the Board's Regulation D, in 12 CFR 204.2(a)(1)(i)) that is a "transaction account" (as defined in 12 CFR 204.2(e)). "Account" encompasses consumer and corporate accounts and includes accounts from which the account holder is permitted to make transfers or withdrawals by any of the following:

- Negotiable instrument
- Payment order of withdrawal
- Telephone transfer
- Electronic payment

For purposes of subpart B, "account" does not include accounts for which the account holder is a bank, a foreign bank, or the Treasury of the United States.

For purposes of subpart D, "account" means any deposit at a bank, including a demand deposit or other transaction account and a savings deposit or other time deposit. Many deposits that are not accounts for purposes of the other subparts of Regulation CC, such as savings deposits, are accounts for purposes of subpart D.

Consumers and Customers

- A consumer is a natural person who draws a check on a consumer account or cashes or deposits a returned check against a consumer account.
- A consumer account is an account used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.
- A customer is a person who has an account with a bank.

Business and Banking Days

- A business day is any day except Saturday, Sunday, and a legal holiday (standard Federal Reserve holiday schedule).
- A banking day is a business day on which a bank is open for substantially all its banking activities.

Even though a bank may be open for regular business on a Saturday, that day is not considered a banking day for purposes of Regulation CC because Saturday is never a "business day" under the regulation. The fact that one branch is open to the public for substantially all its banking activities does not necessarily mean that that day is a banking day for the other branches of the bank.

Administrative Enforcement— Section 229.3

Regulation CC is to be enforced for banks through section 8 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 USC 1818) and through the Federal Credit Union Act (12 USC 1751 et seq.). In addition, a supervisory agency may enforce compliance through any other authority conferred on it by law. The Federal Reserve Board is responsible for enforcing the requirements of Regulation CC for depository institutions that are not specifically the responsibility of another government agency.

2. "MICR (magnetic ink character recognition) line" refers to the numbers—including routing number, account number, check number, and check amount—that are printed across the bottom of a check in magnetic ink. The industry standard for substitute checks is American National Standard Specifications for an Image Replacement Document-IRD, X9.100-140. ANS X9.100-140 specifies ways in which the content of a substitute check's MICR line may vary from the content of the original check's MICR line. ANS X9.100-140 also specifies circumstances in which a substitute check MICR line need not be printed in magnetic ink.

SUBPART B—AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS AND DISCLOSURE OF FUNDS AVAILABILITY POLICIES

Next-Day Availability—Section 229.10

Rules governing next-day availability of funds are set forth in section 229.10.

General Rules (§§ 229.10(a)–229.10(c))

Cash, electronic payments, and certain check deposits must generally be made available for withdrawal the business day after the banking day on which they were received. Among the covered check deposits are cashier's, certified, and teller's checks; government checks (including U.S. Treasury checks, U.S. Postal Service money orders, state and local government checks, and checks drawn on a Federal Reserve Bank or a Federal Home Loan Bank); and certain on-us checks (checks drawn on the same bank, or a branch thereof).

Generally, to qualify for next-day availability, the deposit must be both

- Made at a staffed teller station and
- Deposited into an account held by the payee of the check.

Exceptions are U.S. Treasury checks and on-us checks, which must receive next-day availability even if the deposit is not made at a staffed teller station. Cash and other next-day check deposits (such as Postal Service money orders, cashier's checks, certified checks, checks drawn on a state or local government, and checks drawn on a Reserve Bank or a Federal Home Loan Bank) that are not made at a staffed teller station must be available for withdrawal on the second business day after the day of deposit. (§§ 229.10(a)(2) and 229.10(c)(2))

Additional Rules

A few additional rules also apply:

- State and local government checks—For state and local government checks to receive next-day availability, the depository bank must be located in the same state as the governmental unit issuing the check. (§§ 229.10(c)(1)(iv) and 229.10(c)(1)(v))
- Special deposit slips or envelopes—For deposits of state and local government checks, as well as deposits of cashier's, certified, and teller's checks, the depository bank may require the use of special deposit slips or envelopes. If the depository bank requires the use of special deposit slips or envelopes, it must either provide the slips or tell customers how they can be obtained. (§ 229.10(c)(3))

- On-us checks—For an on-us check to receive next-day availability, it must be drawn on the same branch or another branch of the bank where it is deposited. In addition, both branches must be located in the same state or check-processing region. (§ 229.10(c)(1)(vi))
- $100 rule—Under a special rule for check deposits not subject to next-day availability, the depository bank must provide next-day availability for withdrawal of the lesser of $100 or the aggregate amount deposited to all accounts, including individual and joint accounts, held by the same customer on any one banking day. The $100 rule does not apply to deposits received at nonproprietary ATMs. (§ 229.10(c)(1)(vii))

Availability Schedule—Section 229.12

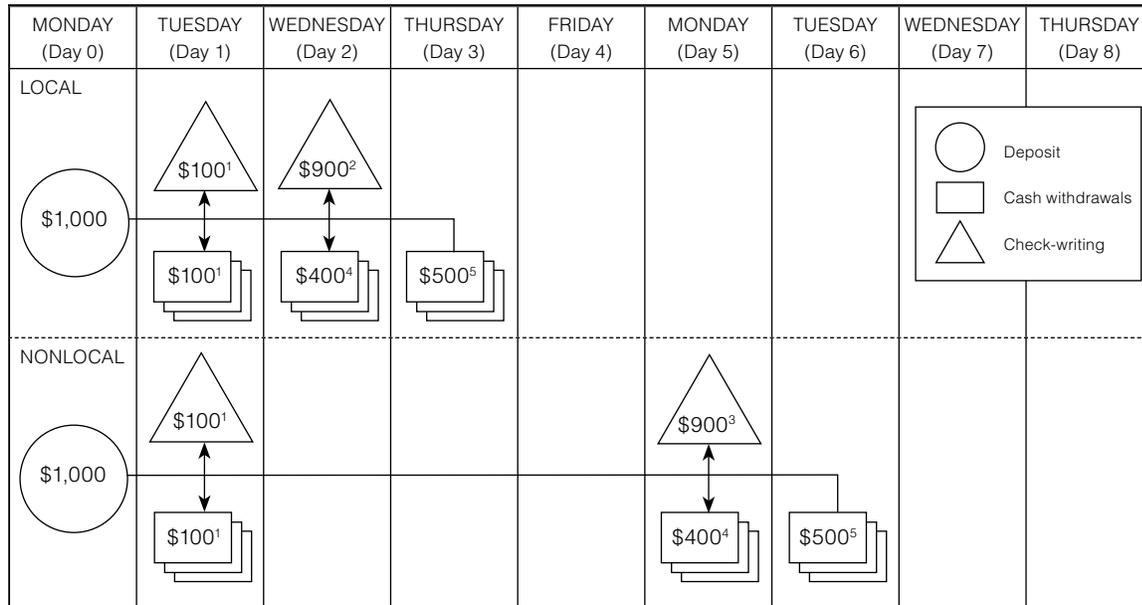

General Rules (§§ 229.12(a)–229.12(c) and 229.12(f))

Under the permanent availability schedule, which became effective in September 1990 (figures 1 and 2), local check deposits must be made available no later than the second business day following the day on which the funds were deposited. Deposits of nonlocal checks must be made available no later than the fifth business day following the banking day of deposit. Funds deposited at nonproprietary ATMs, including cash and all checks, must be made available no later than the fifth business day following the banking day on which they were deposited.

Checks that would normally receive next-day availability are treated as local or nonlocal check deposits if they do not meet all the criteria for next-day availability under section 229.10(c). (As noted in the preceding section, certain checks generally deposited at a staffed teller station and into an account held by the payee of the check receive next-day availability. However, state and local government checks and certain on-us checks are subject to additional rules.)

U.S. Treasury checks and Postal Service money orders that do not meet all the requirements for next-day or second-day availability outlined in section 229.10(c) receive funds availability as if they were local checks. Cashier's, certified, teller's, and state and local government checks and checks drawn on a Federal Reserve Bank or Federal Home Loan Bank that do not meet all the requirements in section 229.10(c) receive funds availability as either local or nonlocal checks according to the location of the bank on which they are drawn.

Availability of Different Types of Checks Deposited on the Same Day

1. The first $100 of a day's deposit must be made available for either cash withdrawal or check-writing purposes at the start of the next business day. (§ 229.10(c)(1)(vii))
 2. Local checks must be made available for check-writing purposes by the second business day following deposit. (§ 229.12(b))
 3. Nonlocal checks must be made available for check-writing purposes by the fifth business day following deposit. (§ 229.12(c))

4. $400 of the deposit must be made available for cash withdrawal no later than 5:00 p.m. on the day specified in the schedule. This is in addition to the $100 that must be made available on the business day following deposit. (§ 229.12(d))
 5. The remainder of the deposit must be made available for cash withdrawal at the start of business the following day. (§ 229.12(d))

Special Rules for Cash Withdrawals
 (§ 229.12(d))

Special rules apply to cash withdrawals from local and nonlocal check deposits. While the depository bank is allowed to extend the availability schedule for cash or similar withdrawals by one day, the customer must still be allowed to withdraw the first $100 of any check deposit not subject to next-day availability on the business day following the day of deposit. In addition to the first $100, a customer must also be allowed to withdraw $400 of the deposited funds (or the maximum amount that may be withdrawn from an ATM, but not more than $400) no later than 5:00 p.m. on the day the funds become available for check withdrawals. The remainder of the deposited funds would be available for cash withdrawal on the following business day.

Extension of the Schedule for Certain Deposits
 (§ 229.12(e))

Banks in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands that receive checks drawn on or payable through banks located in another state may extend the availability schedules for local and nonlocal checks by one day. The exception does not apply to checks drawn on banks in these states or territories and deposited in banks located in the continental United States.

Exceptions to the Availability Schedule—Section 229.13

The regulation provides for exceptions that allow banks to exceed the maximum hold periods specified in the availability schedule. The exceptions are considered “safeguards” because they offer institutions a means of reducing risk based on the size of the deposit, the depositor’s past performance, the absence of a record on the depositor’s past performance, or a belief that the deposit may not be collectible.

Categories of Exception
 (§§ 229.13(a)–229.13(f))

The regulation provides for exceptions in six situations:

Figure 2
Availability of Different Types of Checks Deposited on Separate Days

1. The first $100 of a day's deposit must be made available for either cash withdrawal or check-writing purposes at the start of the next business day. (§ 229.10(c)(1)(vii))
 2. Local checks must be made available for check-writing purposes by the second business day following deposit. (§ 229.12(b))
 3. Nonlocal checks must be made available for check-writing purposes by the fifth business day following deposit. (§ 229.12(c))

4. $400 of the deposit must be made available for cash withdrawal no later than 5:00 p.m. on the day specified in the schedule. This applies to the aggregate amount of deposits that must be made available on a specified day, and is in addition to the $100 that must be made available on the business day following deposit. (§ 229.12(d))
 5. The remainder of the deposit must be made available for cash withdrawal at the start of business the following day. (§ 229.12(d))

- New accounts
- Deposits in excess of $5,000 on any one day
- Checks that have been returned unpaid and are being redeposited
- Deposits to accounts that have been repeatedly overdrawn
- Cases in which the bank has reasonable cause to believe the check being deposited is uncollectible
- Emergency conditions

Although banks may exceed the time frames for availability in these situations, the exceptions generally may not be invoked if the deposit would ordinarily receive next-day availability.

New Accounts (§ 229.13(a))

An account is considered a “new” account, under section 229.13(a), for the first thirty calendar days it is open, beginning on the date the account is established. An account is not considered “new” if “each customer on the account has had, within thirty calendar days before the account is established, another account at the . . . bank for at least thirty calendar days.”

The new-account exception does not cover all deposits made to the account. New accounts are exempted from the availability schedules for deposits of local and nonlocal checks, but next-day availability is required for deposits of cash and for electronic payments. Also, the first $5,000 of a day's aggregate deposits of government checks (including federal, state, and local governments), cashier's, certified, teller's, depository, or traveler's checks must be given next-day availability. The amount in excess of $5,000 must be made available no later than the ninth business day following the day of deposit.

To qualify for next-day availability, deposits into a new account generally must be made in person to an employee of the depository bank. If the deposits are not made in person to an employee of the depository bank—for instance, if they are made at an ATM—availability may be provided on the second business day after the day of deposit. Treasury check deposits, however, must be given next-day availability regardless of whether they are made at staffed teller stations or ATMs. Banks are not required to make the first $100 of a day's deposits of local and nonlocal checks, or the funds from on-us checks, available on the next business day.

Large Deposits (Deposits over $5,000) (§ 229.13(b))

A depository bank may extend hold schedules when deposits other than cash or electronic payments exceed $5,000 on any one day. A hold may be applied to the amount in excess of $5,000. To apply the rule, the depository bank may aggregate deposits made to multiple accounts held by the same customer, even if the customer is not the sole owner of the accounts.

Redeposited Checks (§ 229.13(c))

A depository bank may delay making the funds from a check available if the check had previously been deposited and returned unpaid. The exception does not apply to checks that were previously returned unpaid because of a missing endorsement or because the check was postdated when presented.

Repeated Overdrafts (§ 229.13(d))

If a customer's account, or accounts, have been repeatedly overdrawn during the preceding six months, the bank may delay making the funds from a check available. A customer's account may be considered repeatedly overdrawn in two ways. First, the exception may be applied if the account was overdrawn, or would have been overdrawn had check or other charges been paid, for six or more banking days during the preceding six months.

Second, the exception may be applied to customers who incurred overdrafts on two banking days within the preceding six-month period if the negative balance in the account(s) at that time was $5,000 or more. The exception may also apply if the account would have been overdrawn by $5,000 or more had the check or other charges been paid.

Reasonable Cause to Doubt Collectibility (§ 229.13(e))

This exception may be applied to all types of checks. To trigger the exception, the depository institution must have reasonable cause to believe that the check is not collectible and must disclose the basis for the extended hold to the customer. The basis for reasonable cause may include, for example, communication with the paying bank indicating that

- A stop-payment order has been placed on the check
- There are insufficient funds in the drawer's account to cover the check
- The check will be returned unpaid

The reasonable-cause exception may also be invoked in cases in which

- The check was deposited six months after the date of the check (stale date)
- The check was postdated (future date)
- The depository bank believes that the depositor may be engaged in check kiting
- The depository bank has other confidential information, such as the insolvency or pending insolvency of the customer

The reasonable-cause exception may not be invoked because of either

- The race or national origin of the depositor or
- The fact that the paying bank is located in a rural area and the depository bank will not have time to learn of nonpayment of the check before the funds have to be made available under the availability schedules in place.

If the depository bank intends to use this exception, it must notify the customer, in writing, at the time of deposit. If the deposit is not made in person or the decision to place the hold is based on facts that become known to the bank at a later date, the bank must mail the notice by the business day after the day the deposit is made or the facts become known. The notice must indicate that availability is being delayed and must include the reason the bank believes the funds are uncollectible. If a hold is placed on the basis of confidential information, as when check kiting is suspected, the bank need only disclose to the customer that the hold is based on confidential information indicating that the check may not be paid.

If the depository bank asserts that the hold was based on confidential information, it must note the reason on the notice it retains as a record of compliance. The bank must maintain a record of each exception notice, including documents and a brief description of the facts supporting the reasonable-cause exception, for two years.

Overdraft and returned-check fees (§ 229.13(e)(2))

If a depository bank invokes the reasonable-cause exception and does not inform the customer in writing at the time of the deposit, it may not charge the customer any overdraft or returned-check fees resulting from the hold if

- The deposited check is paid by the paying bank and
- The overdraft would not have occurred or the check would not have been returned had the depository bank not imposed the reasonable-cause hold.

However, the depository bank may assess overdraft or returned-check fees if the exception hold notice states that the customer may be entitled to a refund of any overdraft or returned-check fees imposed and describes how the customer can obtain the refund. The bank must then refund the fees upon request.

Emergency Conditions (§ 229.13(f))

Banks may suspend the availability schedule under the following emergency conditions:

- An interruption of communications or computer or other equipment facilities
- Suspension of payments by another depository institution
- War
- Any emergency condition beyond the control of the depository bank

Notices of Exception (§ 229.13(g))

Whenever a bank invokes one of the exceptions to the availability schedules (except the new-account exception), it must notify the customer in writing. The bank may send a notice that complies solely with section 229.13(g)(1) (the “general exception notice”) or one of the two alternative notices described below.

General Exception Notice (§ 229.13(g)(1))

The general notice of exception must include the following:

- The customer’s account number
- The date of the deposit
- The amount of the deposit that will be delayed
- The reason the exception was invoked
- The day the funds will be available for withdrawal (unless unknown, as in an emergency situation)

If the deposit is made at a staffed facility, the notice may be given to the person making the deposit, regardless of whether that person is the customer who holds the account. If the deposit is not made at a staffed facility, the exception notice may be mailed to the customer no later than the business day following the banking day of deposit. If the depository bank discovers a reason to delay the funds subsequent to the time the notice should have been given, the bank must notify the customer about the hold as soon as possible, but no later than the business day after the facts become known. Certain exception holds due to emergency conditions do not require notification of customers. For example, if the deposited funds that were subject to a hold during an emergency become available for withdrawal before the time the notice must be sent, the depository bank need not send a notice.

One-Time Exception Notice for Nonconsumer Accounts (§ 229.13(g)(2))

If most of the check deposits into a particular nonconsumer account qualify for either the large-deposit exception or the redeposited-check exception, the bank may send a one-time notice rather than a notice complying with section 229.13(g)(1) each time the exception is invoked. The one-time notice must be sent either the first time the exception is invoked or before that time. It must state both

- The reason the exception may be invoked and
- The time period when the funds will generally be made available.

Exception Notice for Repeated Overdrafts (§ 229.13(g)(3))

If most of the check deposits into a particular account qualify for the repeated-overdraft exception, the bank may send an exception notice that covers a specified period of time rather than a notice complying with section 229.13(g)(1) each time the exception is invoked. The “specified period” notice must be sent when the overdraft exception is first invoked. It must state all of the following:

- The customer’s account number
- The fact that access to the funds is being delayed because the repeated-overdraft exception is being invoked
- The time period during which the exception will apply
- The time period within which the funds generally will be available for withdrawal

Availability of Deposits Subject to Exceptions (§ 229.13(h))

For deposits subject to exceptions to the availability schedules, other than deposits into new accounts, the depository bank is permitted to delay availability for a reasonable time beyond the schedule. Generally, a reasonable period is considered to be no more than one business day for on-us checks, five business days for local checks, and six business days for nonlocal checks. If a depository bank extends its availability beyond these time frames, it must be able to prove that the extended delay is reasonable.

Payment of Interest—Section 229.14

General Rule (§ 229.14(a))

A depository bank must begin accruing interest on interest-bearing accounts no later than the business day on which it receives provisional credit for the deposited funds. A depository bank typically receives credit on checks within one or two days following deposit. It receives credit on cash deposits, electronic payments, and checks that are drawn on itself on the day the cash, check, or electronic payment is received. And if a nonproprietary ATM is involved, it usually receives credit on the day the bank that operates the ATM credits the depository bank for the amount of deposit.

A depository bank may rely on the availability schedule of its Federal Reserve Bank, Federal Home Loan Bank, or correspondent bank when determining when the depository bank receives credit (section 229.14(a)(1)). If availability is delayed beyond the time specified in that schedule, a bank may charge back to the account any interest erroneously paid or accrued on the basis of that schedule.

A depository bank may accrue interest on checks deposited to all of its interest-bearing accounts based on an average of when the bank receives credit for all checks sent for payment or collection (section 229.14(a)(2)). For example, if a bank receives credit on 20 percent of the funds deposited by check on the business day of deposit (for example, via on-us checks), 70 percent on the business day following deposit, and 10 percent on the second business day following deposit, the bank may apply these percentages to determine the day on which interest must begin to accrue for check deposits into all interest-bearing accounts, regardless of when the bank received credit for deposits into any particular account. Consequently, a bank may begin accruing interest uniformly across all interest-bearing accounts rather than having to track the type of check deposited to each account.

Nothing in the general rule limits a depository bank policy that provides that interest may accrue only on balances that exceed a specified amount or on the minimum balance maintained in the account during a given period. However, the balance must be determined according to the date the bank receives credit for the funds. Nor is there a limit on a policy that provides that interest may accrue sooner than required by the regulation.

Money market deposit accounts, savings deposit accounts, and time deposit accounts are not subject to the general rule concerning the timing of interest payment. However, for simplicity of operation, a bank may accrue interest on such deposits in the same manner that it accrues interest on transaction accounts.

Exemption for Certain Credit Unions (§ 229.14(b))

Credit unions that do not begin to accrue interest or dividends on their members' accounts until a date later than the day the credit union receives credit for those deposits, including cash deposits, are exempt from the general rule for payment of interest (section 229.14(a)) as long as they provide notice of their interest-accrual policies in accordance with section 229.16(d).

Exception for Checks Returned Unpaid (§ 229.14(c))

Banks are not required to pay interest on funds deposited in an interest-bearing account by a check that has been returned unpaid, regardless of the reason for return.

General Disclosure Requirements—Section 229.15

Form of Disclosures (§ 229.15(a))

A bank must disclose its funds availability policy to its customers. The disclosures must be clear and conspicuous and must be in writing. Disclosures other than those posted at locations where employees accept consumer deposits, at ATMs, or on preprinted deposit slips must be in a form that customers can keep. They must be grouped and must not contain information unrelated to the requirements of Regulation CC. If other account terms are included in the same document, disclosures related to the regulation should be highlighted, for example, by having a separate heading.

Uniform Reference to Day of Availability (§ 229.15(b))

A bank must refer to the day on which funds will be available for withdrawal in a uniform manner in all its disclosures. The statement should describe funds as being available for withdrawal on “the _____ business day after” the day of deposit. The first business day is the business day following the banking day the deposit was received, and the last business day is the day on which the funds are made available.

Multiple Accounts and Multiple Account Holders (§ 229.15(c))

A bank is not required to give multiple disclosures to customers who have more than one account if the accounts are subject to the same availability policies. Nor is a bank required to give separate disclosures to joint account holders; a single disclosure to one of the holders of the joint account is sufficient.

Dormant or Inactive Accounts (§ 229.15(d))

A bank is not required to give disclosures to customers who have dormant or inactive accounts.

Specific Availability Policy Disclosure—Section 229.16

The disclosure describing its funds availability policy that a bank must provide to its customers must reflect the policy followed by the institution in most cases. If the institution wishes to reserve its right to impose longer delays on a case-by-case basis or by invoking one of the exceptions specified in section 229.13, its policy regarding these situations must be reflected in the disclosure.

Content of Specific Availability Policy Disclosure (§ 229.16(b))

A bank's specific availability policy disclosure must include, as applicable, the following:

- A summary of the bank's availability policy
- A description of the categories of deposits or checks used by the bank when it delays availability, such as local or nonlocal checks; how to determine the category to which a particular deposit or check (such as a payable-through draft) belongs; and when each category will be available for withdrawal (including a description of the bank's business days and when a deposit is considered received)
- A description of any of the exceptions specified in section 229.13 that may be invoked by the bank, including the time at which the deposited funds generally will become available for withdrawal and a statement that the bank will notify the customer if the bank invokes one of the exceptions
- A description of any case-by-case policy of delaying availability that may result in deposited funds being available for withdrawal later than the time periods stated in the bank's availability policy (specific requirements are laid out in section 229.16(c)(1))

Longer Delays on a Case-by-Case Basis (§ 229.16(c))

A bank that has a policy of making deposited funds available for withdrawal sooner than required may extend the time when funds are available up to the time periods allowed under the regulation on a case-by-case basis. However, the bank must include the following in its specific policy disclosure:

- A statement that the time when deposited funds are available for withdrawal may be extended in some cases, and a statement of the latest time deposited funds will be available for withdrawal
- A statement that the bank will notify the customer if funds deposited in the customer's account will not be available for withdrawal until after the time periods stated in its availability policy
- A statement that customers should ask if they need to know when a particular deposit will be available for withdrawal

When a depository bank extends the time that funds will be available for withdrawal on a case-by-case basis, it must provide the depositor with a written notice. The notice must include all of the following information:

- The customer's account number
- The date and amount of the deposit
- The amount of the deposit that is being delayed
- The day the funds will be available for withdrawal

The notice must be provided at the time of the deposit, unless the deposit was not made in person to an employee of the depository bank or the decision to delay availability was made after the time of the deposit. If notice is not given at the time of the deposit, the depository bank must mail or deliver the notice to the customer no later than the first business day following the banking day the deposit was made.

A depository bank that extends the time when funds will be available for withdrawal on a case-by-case basis and does not furnish the depositor with written notice at the time of deposit may not assess any fees for any subsequent overdrafts (including use of a line of credit) or return of checks or other debits to the account if

- The overdraft or return of the check or other debit would not have occurred except for the fact that the deposited funds were delayed under section 229.16(c)(1) of the regulation and

- The deposited check was paid by the paying bank.

However, the depository bank may assess an overdraft or returned-check fee if it includes a notice concerning overdraft and returned-check fees with the disclosure required in section 229.16(c)(2) and, when required, refunds any such fees upon the request of the customer. The overdraft and returned-check notice must state that the customer may be entitled to a refund of overdraft or returned-check fees that are assessed if the check subject to the delay is paid, and also must state how to obtain a refund.

Credit Union Notice of Interest-Payment Policy (§ 229.16(d))

If a credit union begins to accrue interest or dividends on all deposits made into an interest-bearing account, including cash deposits, at a later time than the day specified in section 229.14(a), the institution's specific policy disclosures must explain when interest or dividends on deposited funds will begin to accrue.

Initial Disclosures—Section 229.17

A bank must provide potential customers with the disclosures described in section 229.16 before an account is opened.

Additional Disclosure Requirements—Section 229.18

Deposit Slips (§ 229.18(a))

All preprinted deposit slips given to customers must include a notice that deposits may not be available for immediate withdrawal.

Locations Where Employees Accept Consumer Deposits (§ 229.18(b))

A bank must post, at a conspicuous place at each location where its employees receive deposits to consumer accounts, a notice that sets forth the time periods applicable to the availability of funds deposited.

Automated Teller Machines (§ 229.18(c))

At each of its ATM locations, a depository bank must post or provide a notice that funds deposited in the ATM may not be available for immediate withdrawal. A depository bank that operates an off-premises ATM from which deposits are removed not more than two times each week, as described in section 229.19(a)(4), must disclose at or on the ATM the days on which deposits made at the ATM will be considered received.

Upon Request (§ 229.18(d))

A bank must provide a copy of its specific availability policy disclosure (described in section 229.16) to any person who requests it.

Changes in Policy (§ 229.18(e))

Thirty days before implementing a change in its availability policy, a bank must send notification of the change to all account holders adversely affected by the change. Changes that result in faster availability may be disclosed no later than thirty days after implementation.

Miscellaneous Provisions—Section 229.19

When Funds Are Considered Deposited (§ 229.19(a))

For purposes of subpart B of Regulation CC (sections 229.10–229.21), the time at which funds must be made available for withdrawal is measured from the day the funds are considered deposited (or “received” by the bank). When funds are considered officially deposited differs according to where, how, and when they are deposited:

- Funds deposited at a staffed teller station or a staffed ATM—Considered deposited when received by the teller or placed in the ATM.
- Funds mailed to the depository bank—Considered deposited on the banking day they are received by the depository bank; in this case, funds are considered “received” at the time the mail is delivered to the bank, even if it is initially delivered to a mail room rather than the check-processing area.
- Funds deposited at a night depository—Considered deposited on the banking day the funds are removed from the night depository and are accessible to the depository bank for processing. For example, some businesses deposit their funds in a locked bag at the night depository late in the evening and return to the bank the following day to open the bag; others have an agreement with the bank that the deposit bag must be opened under the dual control of the bank and the depositor. In both cases, the funds are considered deposited when the customer returns to the bank and opens the deposit bag.
- Funds deposited through a lock box arrangement—Considered deposited on the day the funds are removed from the lock box and are accessible to the depository bank for processing. A lock box is a post office box that is typically used by a corporation for the collection of bill payments or other check receipts.

- Funds deposited at off-premises ATMs that are not serviced more than twice a week—Considered deposited on the day they are removed from the ATM. This special provision is geared toward banks whose practice is to service remote ATMs infrequently. A depository bank that uses this provision must post a notice at the ATM informing depositors that funds deposited at the ATM may not be considered received on the date of deposit.
- Funds deposited on a day the depository bank is closed or after the bank's cutoff hour—May be considered deposited on the next banking day.

Cutoff Hours

Generally, a bank may establish a cutoff hour of 2:00 p.m. or later for receipt of deposits at its main office or branch offices and a cutoff hour of 12:00 noon or later for deposits made at ATMs, lock boxes, night depositories, or other off-premises facilities. (As specified in the commentary to section 229.19(a), the 12:00 noon cutoff time relates to the local time at the branch or other location of the depository bank where the account is maintained or the local time at the ATM or off-premises facility.)

Different cutoff hours may be established for different types of deposits—for example, a 2:00 p.m. cutoff for receipt of check deposits and a later time for receipt of wire transfers is permissible. Location can also play a role in the establishment of cutoff hours; for example, different cutoff hours may be established for ATM deposits and over-the-counter deposits, or for different teller stations at the same branch. With the exception of the 12:00 noon cutoff hour for deposits at ATMs and off-premises facilities, the cutoff hour for receipt of deposits may not be earlier than 2:00 p.m.

Hour of Funds Availability (§ 229.19(b))

Generally, funds must be available for withdrawal by 9:00 a.m. or the time a depository bank's teller facilities, including ATMs, are available for customer account withdrawals, whichever is later. (Under certain circumstances, there is a special exception for cash withdrawals—see section 229.12(d).) Thus, if a bank has no ATMs and its branch facilities are available for customer transactions beginning at 10:00 a.m., funds must be available for withdrawal by 10:00 a.m. If a bank has 24-hour ATM service, funds must be available for ATM withdrawals by 9:00 a.m.

The start of business is determined by the local time at the branch or depository bank holding the account. For example, if funds in an account at a West Coast bank are first made available at the start of business on a given day and a customer attempts to withdraw the funds at an East Coast ATM, the depository bank is not required to make funds available until 9:00 a.m. West Coast time (12:00 noon East Coast time).

Effects of the Regulation on Depository Bank Policies (§ 229.19(c))

Essentially, a depository bank is permitted to provide availability to its customers in a shorter time than that prescribed in the regulation. The bank may also adopt different funds availability policies for different segments of its customer base, so long as each policy meets the schedules in the regulation. For example, it may differentiate between its corporate and consumer customers, or may adopt different policies for its consumer customers based on whether a customer has an overdraft line of credit associated with his or her account.

The regulation does not affect a depository bank's right to accept or reject a check for deposit, to "charge back" the customer's account for the amount of a check based on the return of the check or receipt of a notice of nonpayment of the check, or to claim a refund for any credit provided to the customer.

Nothing in the regulation requires a depository bank to have its facilities open for customers to make withdrawals at specified times or on specific days. For example, even though the special cash withdrawal rule set forth in section 229.12(d) states that a bank must make up to $400 available for cash withdrawals no later than 5:00 p.m. on specific business days, if a bank does not participate in an ATM system and does not have any teller windows open at or after 5:00 p.m., the bank need not join an ATM system or keep offices open. In this case, the bank complies with the rule if the funds that are required to be available for cash withdrawal at 5:00 p.m. on a particular day are available for withdrawal at the start of business on the following day. Similarly, if a depository bank is closed for customer transactions, including ATM transactions, on a day on which funds must be made available for withdrawal, the regulation does not require the bank to open.

If a bank has a policy of limiting cash withdrawals at ATMs to $250 a day, the regulation does not require that the bank dispense $400 of the proceeds of the customer's deposit that must be made available for cash withdrawal on that day.

Some small financial institutions do not keep cash on their premises and do not offer cash withdrawal services to their customers. Others limit the amount of cash on their premises, for reasons related to bonding, and as a result reserve the right to limit the amount of cash a customer may withdraw on a given day or to require advance notice for large cash withdrawals. Nothing in the regulation is intended to prohibit these practices if they are applied uniformly and are based on security, operating, or bonding requirements and if the policy is not dependent on the length of time the funds have been in the customer's account, as long as the permissible hold has expired. However, the regulation does not authorize such policies if they are otherwise prohibited by statutory, regulatory, or common law.

Calculated Availability for Nonconsumer Accounts (§ 229.19(d))

Under calculated availability, a specified percentage of funds from check deposits may be made available to the customer on the next business day, with the remaining percentage deferred until subsequent days. The determination of the percentage of deposited funds that will be made available each day is based on the customer's typical deposit mix as determined by a sample of the customer's deposits. Use of calculated availability is permitted only if, on average, the availability terms that result from the sample are equivalent to or more prompt than the requirements of the regulation.

Holds on Other Funds (§ 229.19(e))

If a customer deposits a check, the bank may place a hold on any of the customer's funds to the extent that the funds held do not exceed the amount of the check deposited and if the total amount of funds held are made available for withdrawal within the times required in the regulation. For example, if a customer cashes a check (other than an on-us check) over-the-counter, the depository bank may place a hold on any of the customer's funds to the extent that the funds held do not exceed the amount of the check cashed.

Employee Training and Compliance (§ 229.19(f))

The Expedited Funds Availability Act requires banks to inform each employee who performs duties subject to the act about its requirements. The act and Regulation CC also require banks to establish and maintain procedures designed to ensure and monitor employee compliance with the requirements.

Effects of Mergers (§ 229.19(g))

Merged banks may be treated as separate banks for a period of up to one year after consummation of the merger transaction. However, a customer of any bank that is a party to the merger transaction and has an established account with the merging bank may not be treated as a new account holder under the new-account exception of section 229.13(a). A deposit in any branch of the merged bank is considered deposited in the bank for purposes of the availability schedules in accordance with section 220.19(a).

This rule affects the status of the combined entity in a number of areas, for example,

- When the resulting bank is a participant in a check clearinghouse association
- When an ATM is a proprietary ATM
- When a check is drawn on a branch of the depository bank

Relation to State Law— Section 229.20

General Rule (§ 229.20(a))

If a state has a shorter hold for a certain category of checks than is provided for under federal law, the state requirement supersedes the federal provision. For example, most state laws base some hold periods on whether the check deposited is drawn on an in-state or out-of-state bank. If a state contains more than one check-processing region, the state's hold period for in-state checks may be shorter than the federal maximum hold period for nonlocal checks. Accordingly, the state schedule supersedes the federal schedule to the extent that it applies to in-state, nonlocal checks.

The Expedited Funds Availability Act also indicates that any state law providing availability in a shorter period of time than required by federal law is applicable to all federally insured institutions in that state, including federally chartered institutions. If a state law provides shorter availability only for deposits in accounts in certain categories of banks, such as commercial banks, the superseding state law continues to apply to only those categories of banks, rather than to all federally insured banks in the state.

Preemption of Inconsistent Law (§ 229.20(b))

Provisions of state laws that are inconsistent with federal law, other than those discussed in the preceding section ("General Rule"), are preempted. State laws requiring disclosure of availability policies for transaction accounts are preempted by Regulation CC. Preemption does not require a determination by the Federal Reserve Board to be effective.

Preemption Standards and Determinations (§§ 229.20(c) and (d))

The Federal Reserve Board may issue a preemption determination upon request by an interested party in a state. The determination will relate only to the provisions of subparts A and B of Regulation CC.

Civil Liability—Section 229.21

Statutory Penalties (§ 229.21(a))

Statutory penalties can be imposed as a result of a successful individual or class action suit brought for violations of subpart B of Regulation CC. Basically, a bank can be held liable for

- Actual damages,
- No less than $100 nor more than $1,000 in the case of an individual action,
- The lesser of $500,000 or 1 percent of the net worth of the bank involved in the case of a class action, and
- The costs of the action, together with reasonable attorney's fees as determined by the court.

These penalties also apply to provisions of state law that supersede provisions of the regulation, such as requirements that funds deposited in accounts at banks be made available more promptly than required by the regulation, but they do not apply to other provisions of state law. (See commentary to appendix D, section 229.20.)

Bona Fide Errors (§ 229.21(c))

A bank will not be considered liable for violations of Regulation CC if it can demonstrate, by a preponderance of evidence, that violations resulted from bona fide errors and that it maintains procedures designed to avoid such errors.

Reliance on Federal Reserve Board Rulings (§ 229.21(e))

A bank will not be held liable if it acts in good faith in reliance on any rule, regulation, model form (if the disclosure actually corresponds to the bank's availability policy), or interpretation of the Federal Reserve Board, even if that rule, regulation, form, or interpretation is subsequently determined to be invalid. Banks may rely on the commentary as well as on the regulation itself.

Exclusions (§ 229.21(f))

The liability established by section 229.21 does not apply to violations of subpart C (Collection of Checks) of Regulation CC or to actions for wrongful dishonor of a check by a paying bank's customer. (Separate liability provisions applying to subpart C are found in section 229.38.)

SUBPART C— COLLECTION OF CHECKS

Subpart C covers the check-collection system and includes rules to speed the collection and return of checks. Basically, these rules cover the return responsibilities of paying and returning banks, authorization of direct returns, notification of nonpayment on large-dollar returns of the paying bank, and mandatory check endorsement standards.

Sections 229.30 and 229.31 require paying and returning banks to return checks expeditiously using one of two standards: the "two-day/four-day" test and the "forward collection" test. Under the two-day/four-day test, a return is considered expeditious if a local check is received by the depository bank two business days after presentment, and a nonlocal bank four business days after presentment. Under the forward collection test, a return is considered expeditious if the paying bank uses, for returns, transportation methods and banks comparable to those used for forward collection. The paying bank may return checks directly to the depository bank of any bank agreeing to process the returns, including the Federal Reserve.

Subpart C, in section 229.33, also requires a bank to provide notification of nonpayment if it determines not to pay a check of $2,500 or more, regardless of the channel of collection. The regulation addresses the depository bank's duty to notify its customers that a check is being returned and the paying bank's responsibility for giving notice of nonpayment.

Other areas that are covered in subpart C are endorsement standards, warranties by paying and returning banks, bona fide errors and liability, variations by agreement, insolvency of banks, and the effect of merger transactions.

The provisions of subpart C, section 229.41, supersede any state law, but only to the extent that state law is inconsistent with Regulation CC.

The expeditious-return requirements of section 229.42 do not apply to checks drawn on the U.S. Treasury, U.S. Postal Service money orders, and checks drawn on states and units of general local government that are presented directly to the state or units of general local government and that are not payable through or at a bank.

SUBPART D—SUBSTITUTE CHECKS

General Provisions Governing Substitute Checks—Section 229.51

A substitute check for which a bank has provided the warranties described in section 229.52³ is the legal equivalent of an original check if the substitute check

- Accurately represents all of the information on the front and back of the original check and
- Bears the legend “This is a legal copy of your check. You can use it the same way you would use the original check.”⁴

The reconverting bank must adhere to Regulation CC’s standards for preserving bank endorsements and identifications. A reconverting bank that receives consideration for a substitute check that it transfers, presents, or returns is also the first bank to provide the warranties described in section 229.52 and the indemnity described in section 229.53.

Substitute Check Warranties and Indemnity—Sections 229.52 and 229.53

Starting with the reconverting bank, any bank that transfers, presents, or returns a substitute check (or a paper or electronic representation of a substitute check) and receives consideration for that check warrants that the substitute check meets the legal-equivalence requirements and that a check that has already been paid will not be presented for subsequent payment.

Such a bank also provides an indemnity to cover losses that the recipient and any subsequent recipient of the substitute check incur because of the receipt of a substitute check instead of the original check.

Expedited Recredit for Consumers—Section 229.54

Section 229.54(a) sets forth the conditions under which a consumer may make an expedited recredit claim for losses associated with the consumer’s receipt of a substitute check. To use the expedited recredit procedure, the consumer must be able to assert in good faith that

- The consumer’s account was charged for a substitute check that was provided to the consumer,

- The consumer’s account was improperly charged or the consumer has a warranty claim,
- The consumer suffered a loss, and
- The consumer needs the original check or a sufficient copy to determine the validity of the claim.

To make a claim, the consumer must comply with the timing, content, and form requirements in section 229.54(b). This section generally provides that a consumer’s claim must be received by the bank that holds the consumer’s account no later than the fortieth calendar day after the later of

- The calendar day on which the bank mailed (or delivered by a means agreed to by the consumer) the periodic statement describing the contested transaction or
- The calendar day on which the bank mailed (or delivered by a means agreed to by the consumer) the substitute check itself.

Section 229.54(b)(1)(ii) requires the bank to give the consumer an additional, reasonable period of time if the consumer experiences “extenuating circumstances” that prevent timely submission of the claim.

The commentary to section 229.60 provides that the bank may voluntarily give the consumer more time to submit a claim than the rule allows.

Under section 229.54(b)(2)(ii), a complaint is not considered complete, and thus does not constitute a claim, until it contains all of the required information the rule requires. The rule requires that the claim contain⁵

- A description of why the consumer believes the account was improperly charged or the nature of the consumer’s warranty claim,
- A statement that the consumer has suffered a loss, and an estimate of the amount of the loss,
- A reason why the original check (or a copy of the check that is better than the substitute check the consumer already received) is necessary to determine whether the consumer’s claim is valid, and
- Sufficient information to allow the bank to identify the substitute check and investigate the claim.

A bank, at its discretion, may require the consumer to submit the claim in writing. If a consumer makes an oral claim to a bank that requires a written claim, the bank must inform the consumer of the written requirement at that time.

3. A person other than a bank that creates a substitute check could transfer that check only by agreement unless and until a bank provides the substitute check warranties.

4. A bank may not vary the language of the legal-equivalence legend.

5. If a consumer submits an incomplete complaint, the bank must so inform the consumer and must tell the consumer what information is missing.

Under those circumstances, the bank must receive the written claim by the later of ten business days from the date of an oral claim or the expiration of the consumer's initial forty-day period for submitting a timely claim. As long as the original oral claim fell within the forty-day requirement for notification and a complete written claim was received within the additional ten-day window, the claim meets the timing requirements (sections 229.54(b)(1) and 229.54(b)(3)), even if the written claim was received after the expiration of the initial forty-day period.

Bank's Action on Claims

Section 229.54(c) requires a bank to act on a consumer's claim no later than the tenth business day after the banking day on which it received the consumer's claim:

- If the bank determines that the consumer's claim is valid, it must recredit the consumer's account no later than the end of the business day after the banking day on which it makes that determination. The amount of the recredit should equal the amount of the consumer's loss, up to the amount of the substitute check, plus interest on that amount if the account is an interest-bearing account. The bank must then notify the consumer of the recredit using the notice discussed below ("Notices Relating to Expedited Recredit Claims").
- If the bank determines that the consumer's claim is invalid, it must notify the consumer of that decision using the notice discussed below ("Notices Relating to Expedited Recredit Claims").
- If the bank has not determined the validity of the consumer's claim by the tenth business day after the banking day on which it received the claim, the bank must recredit the consumer's account for the amount of the consumer's loss, up to the amount of the substitute check or $2,500, whichever is less. The bank must also recredit interest on that amount if the consumer's account is an interest-bearing account. The bank must send a notice to that effect to the consumer using the notice discussed below ("Notices Relating to Expedited Recredit Claims"). If the consumer's loss was more than $2,500, the bank has until the end of the forty-fifth calendar day from the date of the claim to recredit any remaining amount of the consumer's loss, up to the amount of the substitute check (plus interest), unless it determines prior to that time that the claim was invalid and notifies the consumer of that decision.

Section 229.54(d) generally requires that recredited funds receive next-day availability. However, a bank that provisionally recredits funds pending further investigation may invoke safeguard exceptions to delay availability of the recredit under the limited circumstances described in section 229.54(d)(2). The safeguard exceptions apply to new accounts and repeatedly overdrawn accounts and also when the bank has reasonable cause to suspect that the claim is fraudulent. A bank may delay availability of a provisionally recredited amount until the start of the earlier of (1) the business day after the banking day on which the bank determines that the consumer's claim is valid or (2) the forty-fifth calendar day after the banking day on which the bank received the claim if the account is new, the account is overdrawn, or the bank has reasonable cause to believe that the claim is fraudulent. When the bank delays availability under this section, it may not impose overdraft fees on checks drawn against the provisionally credited funds until the fifth calendar day after the day on which the bank sent the notice regarding the delayed availability.

If, after providing the recredit, the bank determines that the consumer's claim was invalid, the bank may reverse the recredit. This reversal must be accompanied by a consumer notification using the notice discussed below ("Notices Relating to Expedited Recredit Claims").

Notices Relating to Expedited Recredit Claims

Section 229.54(e) outlines the requirements for providing consumer notices related to expedited recredit:

- The bank must send the notice of recredit no later than the business day after the banking day on which the bank recredits the consumer's account. The notice must include the amount of the recredit and the date the recredited funds will be available for withdrawal.
- The bank must send notice that the consumer's claim is not valid no later than the business day after the banking day on which the bank makes this determination. The notice must include the original check or a sufficient copy of it (except as provided in section 229.58; see below). Also, it must demonstrate to the consumer why the claim is not valid. Further, the notice must include either any information or document that the bank used in making its determination or an indication that the consumer may request copies of this information.
- The bank must send the notice of a reversal of recredit no later than the business day after the banking day on which the bank made the reversal. The notice must include all the information required in a notice of invalid claim plus the amount (including interest) and date of the reversal (section 229.54(e)(3)(i)).

Appendix C to Regulation CC contains model forms (models C-23 through C-25) that a bank may use to craft the various notices required in section 229.54(e). The Board published these models to assist banks in complying with section 229.54(e). Appropriate use of the models, however, does not offer banks a statutory safe harbor.

Expedited Recredit for Banks— Section 229.55

Section 229.55 sets forth expedited recredit procedures applicable between banks. A claimant bank must adhere to the timing, content, and form requirements of section 229.55(b) in order for the claim to be valid. A bank against which an interbank recredit claim is made has ten business days within which to act on the claim (section 229.55(c)). The provisions of section 229.55 may be varied by agreement. (No other provisions of subpart D may be varied by agreement.)

Liability—Section 229.56

Section 229.56 describes the damages for which a bank or person would be liable in the event of breach of warranty or failure to comply with subpart D:

- The amount of the actual loss, up to the amount of the substitute check, resulting from the breach or failure and
- Interest and expenses (including costs, reasonable attorney's fees, and other expenses of representation) related to the substitute check.

These amounts could be reduced in the event of negligence or failure to act in good faith. It is also important to note that section 229.56 contains a specific exception that allows for greater recovery as provided in the indemnity section. Thus, a person who has an indemnity claim that also involves a breach of a substitute check warranty could recover all damages proximately caused by the warranty breach.

Section 229.56(b) excuses failure to meet this subpart's time limits because of circumstances beyond a bank's control. Section 229.56(c) provides that an action to enforce a claim under this subpart may be brought in any U.S. district court. Section 229.56(c) also provides the subpart's statute of limitations: one year from the date on which a person's cause of action accrues.⁶ Section 229.56(d) states that if a person fails to provide

6. For purposes of this paragraph, a cause of action accrues as of the date on which the injured person first learns, or reasonably should have learned, of the facts giving rise to the claim, including the identity of the warranting or indemnifying bank against which the action is brought.

notice of a claim for more than thirty days from the date on which a cause of action accrues, the warranting or indemnifying bank is discharged from liability to the extent of any loss caused by the delay in giving notice of the claim.

Consumer Awareness— Section 229.57

Content Requirements

A bank must provide its consumer customers with a disclosure that explains that a substitute check is the legal equivalent of the original check and describes the consumer's recredit rights for substitute checks. A bank may use, but is not required to use, the Board's model form (model C-5A in appendix C to Regulation CC) to meet the content requirements for this notice. A bank that uses the model form appropriately is deemed to be in compliance with the content requirements for which it uses language from the model form. A bank may provide the notice required by section 229.57 along with other information.

Distribution to Consumer Customers Who Receive Canceled Checks with Periodic Account Statements

Under section 229.57(b)(1), a bank must provide this disclosure to existing consumer customers who routinely receive their canceled checks in their periodic statement no later than the first statement after October 28, 2004. For customer relationships established after that date, a bank must provide the disclosure to a new consumer customer who will routinely receive canceled checks in periodic statements at the time the customer relationship is established.

Distribution to Consumer Customers Who Receive a Substitute Check Occasionally

Under section 229.57(b)(2), a bank must also provide the disclosure to a consumer customer who receives a substitute check on an occasional basis, including when a consumer receives a substitute check in response to a request for a check or a copy of a check and when a check deposited by the consumer is returned to the consumer as an unpaid item in the form of a substitute check. A bank must provide the disclosure to a consumer customer in these cases even if the bank previously provided the disclosure to the consumer.

When the consumer contacts the bank to request a check or a copy of a check and the bank responds by providing a substitute check, the bank must provide this disclosure at the time of the request, if feasible. Otherwise, the bank must provide the disclosure no later than when the bank provides a substitute check in response to the consumer's request. It would not be feasible to provide the disclosure at the time of the request if, for example, the consumer made his or her request by telephone or if the bank did not know at the time of the request whether it would provide a substitute check or some other document in response. A bank is not required to provide the disclosure if the bank responds to the consumer's request by providing something other than an actual substitute check (such as a photocopy of an original check or a substitute check).

When a bank returns a deposited item unpaid to a consumer in the form of a substitute check, the bank must provide the disclosure when it provides the substitute check.

Mode of Delivery of Information— Section 229.58

Section 229.58 provides that banks may deliver any notice or other information required under this subpart by U.S. mail or by any other means to which the recipient has agreed to receive account information, including electronically. A bank that is required to provide an original check or a sufficient copy (each of which is defined as a specific paper document) instead may provide an electronic image of the original check or sufficient copy if the recipient has agreed to receive that information electronically.

Regulation CC

Examination Objectives and Procedures

Note: The examination objectives and examination procedures for this regulation are broken down by regulation subpart: Section I covers subparts A and B, and section II covers subpart D. Subpart C of the regulation, "Collection of Checks," is not covered here, as it addresses payments system issues exclusively and therefore does not present any consumer-related regulatory compliance issues to be reviewed during a consumer compliance examination.

I. SUBPARTS A AND B

EXAMINATION OBJECTIVES

1. To determine that the financial institution's funds availability policies are in compliance with Regulation CC
2. To determine that the financial institution has established internal controls for compliance with Regulation CC
3. To determine that the financial institution has established a training program for applicable employees concerning their duties with respect to Regulation CC
4. To determine that the financial institution maintains records of compliance with Regulation CC for a period of two years

EXAMINATION PROCEDURES

A financial institution may delay funds availability for some deposits on a case-by-case basis and for other deposits on an automatic basis. In addition, the institution may make decisions concerning holds and maintain records at branches as well as at the main office. Therefore, to check on an institution's compliance with its holds policies, the examiner must determine not only the types of holds policies the institution has, but how decisions are made and where records are maintained. If a branch makes its own decision and maintains its own records, such as in a decentralized structure, sampling may be done at the branch. If decisions to delay availability are either centralized or made at a regional processing center and records are maintained there, sampling for compliance may be made at that location.

General

1. Determine the types of transaction accounts, as defined in Regulation D, section 204.2(e)

(demand deposits, NOW accounts, and ATS accounts), offered by the financial institution.

2. Obtain copies of the forms used by the institution for transaction accounts, as applicable:
 - Specific availability policy disclosures
 - Exception hold notices
 - Case-by-case hold notices
 - Special deposit slips
 - Change-in-terms notices
3. Determine, by account type, the institution's specific funds availability policies with regard to deposits.
4. Determine which individuals actually perform the various activities necessary to comply with the provisions of Regulation CC, subpart B, including, for example, personnel engaged in
 - Distributing disclosure statements
 - Employee training
 - Internal reviews
 - Computer program development for deposit accounts (not necessarily a computer programmer)
 - Deposit operations
 - Overdraft administration
 - ATM deposit processing
 - Determining case-by-case holds or exceptions
5. Review the institution's training manual, internal audit or similar reports for Regulation CC, written procedures given to employees detailing their responsibilities under the regulation, and similar materials.
6. Determine the extent and adequacy of the instruction and training received by those employees to enable them to carry out their assigned responsibilities in conformance with Regulation CC.
7. Verify that the institution provides each employee with a written statement regarding the institution's procedures that pertain to that employee's function. (§ 229.19(f))

Initial Disclosures and Subsequent Changes

1. Review the financial institution's specific availability policy disclosures. Determine if the disclosures accurately reflect the institution's funds availability policies and meet the requirements for content under section 229.16.

2. Determine if the institution provides the initial disclosure statement prior to accepting funds to open a new transaction account, or mails the disclosures within one business day of receiving a written request by mail or telephone to open a new account. (§ 229.17(a))
3. Determine if the institution provides its funds availability policy upon an oral or written request within a reasonable time period. (§ 229.18(d))
4. Determine if the institution has made changes to its availability policies since the last examination. If it has, determine whether depositors were notified in accordance with section 229.18(e).

Automatic (or Automated) Hold Policies

1. Review the financial institution's schedules or other materials relating to its funds availability time periods for the following types of deposits:
 - Cash (§ 229.10(a))
 - Electronic payments (§ 229.10(b))
 - U.S. Treasury checks (§§ 229.10(c)(1)(i) and 229.12(b)(2))
 - U.S. Postal Service money orders (§§ 229.10(c)(1)(ii), 229.10(c)(2), and 229.12(b)(3))
 - Checks drawn on Federal Reserve Banks and Federal Home Loan Banks (§§ 229.10(c)(1)(iii), 229.10(c)(2), 229.12(b)(4), and 229.12(c)(1)(ii))
 - State or local government checks (§§ 229.10(c)(1)(iv), 229.10(c)(2), 229.12(b)(4), and 229.12(c)(1)(ii))
 - Cashier's, certified, and teller's checks (§§ 229.10(c)(1)(v), 229.10(c)(2), 229.12(b)(4), and 229.12(c)(1)(ii))
 - On-us checks (§§ 229.10(c)(1)(vi) and 229.11(c)(1)(ii))
 - Local checks (§ 229.12(b)(1))
 - Nonlocal checks (§ 229.12(c)(1)(i))
 - Credit union share draft accounts (commentary to § 229.16(b))
2. Determine that the institution's policy for providing funds availability is in accordance with regulatory requirements.
3. Determine the institution's procedures for placing holds.
4. Selectively sample each of the types of deposits listed in item 1 and verify the funds availability time frames. Determine, for each deposit category, whether the financial institution's procedures provide funds availability within the required time periods. Determine that the procedures and disclosed policy are the same.

Deposits at Nonproprietary ATMs—Section 229.12(f)

(See also sections 229.19(a)(4) and 229.19(a)(5)(ii) and commentary to sections 229.19(a) and 229.19(b) for off-premises ATMs.)

1. Determine that the institution makes funds deposited in an account at a nonproprietary ATM by cash or check available for withdrawal not later than the fifth business day following the day of deposit.

Availability Rules—$100 and $400—Sections 229.10(c)(1)(vii) and 229.11(b)(2)

1. Determine the financial institution's procedures for complying with the $100 availability rule and, if applicable, the $400 cash withdrawal rule.
2. Review records that detail holds placed on accounts. Determine if holds are in accordance with the regulation.
3. Sample deposit accounts with deposits subject to the $100 availability rule and the $400 cash withdrawal rule and verify the institution's compliance with the rules. Verify that actual practices and policies match.

Extended Holds

Case-by-Case Holds

1. Determine if the financial institution places holds on a case-by-case basis. If it does, review the institution's procedures for placing case-by-case holds.
2. Review the institution's specific availability policy disclosures to determine whether the case-by-case hold policy has been disclosed.
3. Review any physical records or reports generated from holds placed. (Sample should include records from the main office as well as branch offices, depending on the type of branch system operated.)
4. Sample a few of the case-by-case holds and determine whether the institution makes the funds available for withdrawal within the required time frames.
5. Determine whether the institution provides the customer with a notice of the case-by-case hold as required by section 229.16(c)(2). Determine if the notices meet the timing and content requirements.

6. If the institution does not provide the notice at the time of deposit, determine whether it either discloses the availability of refunds of overdraft and returned-check fees or does not assess these fees when the requirements of section 229.16(c)(3) are met.

Exception Holds (§ 229.13)

1. Determine whether the financial institution places holds on an exception basis. If it does, review its procedures for placing exception holds.
2. Review the institution's specific availability policy disclosures to determine whether it has disclosed its exception-holds policy.
3. Review any physical records or reports generated from holds placed. (Sample should include records from the main office as well as branch offices, depending on the type of branch system operated.)
4. Sample a few of the exception holds and determine when the institution makes the funds available for withdrawal. Determine that the institution does not add more than one business day for on-us checks, five business days for local checks, and six business days for nonlocal checks to the maximum time periods in the federal availability schedule for the deposit unless it can show that a longer delay is reasonable. (§ 229.13(h))
5. With the exception of new accounts, determine whether the institution provides the customer with an exception-hold notice as required by section 229.13(g).
6. Review hold notices. Determine if the notices meet the timing and content requirements for each type of exception hold. (Note: Institutions are required to retain copies of reasonable-cause hold notices.)

New Accounts (§ 229.13(a))

1. Review financial institution policies for new accounts.
2. Determine how the institution defines a new-account relationship. Determine if the institution's definition is in compliance with Regulation CC.
3. Review the institution's specific availability policy disclosure to determine whether the institution has disclosed its availability policy regarding new accounts.
4. Review a new-account report or listing of new-account holders. Determine if any holds were placed on the accounts.
5. Sample deposit accounts, and ask the institution to provide documentation concerning the composition of the opening deposit or the most recent deposit.

6. Review holds placed and determine if they are within regulatory limits with respect to time and amount (see section 229.13(a)(1)). (Note: No regulatory time limits are set forth for funds availability for local and nonlocal check deposits into new accounts.)

Large Deposits (§ 229.13(b))

1. Determine whether the financial institution has procedures and a special hold policy for large deposits. If it does, determine whether the institution considers a large deposit, for purposes of the large-deposit exception, to be a day's aggregate deposit of checks exceeding $5,000.
2. Determine that the institution does not invoke the large-deposit exception for cash or electronic payments.
3. Review at least one account deposit on which a large-deposit hold was placed and ensure that the hold was placed only on the amount by which a day's deposits of checks exceeded $5,000.
4. Determine if the institution provided the customer with a written exception notice that meets the requirements of section 229.13(g)(1) or 229.13(g)(2).
5. Determine if the notice was provided within the time frames prescribed in section 229.13(g)(1) or 229.13(g)(2).

Redeposited Checks (§ 229.13(c))

1. Determine if the financial institution has procedures and a special hold policy for redeposited checks.
2. If it does, determine if the institution refrains from imposing this exception solely because of a missing endorsement or because the check was postdated.
3. Determine if the institution provided the customer with a written exception notice that meets the requirements of section 229.13(g)(1) or 229.13(g)(2).
4. Determine if the notice was provided within the time frames prescribed in section 229.13(g)(1) or 229.13(g)(2).

Repeated Overdrafts (§ 229.13(d))

1. Determine whether the financial institution has procedures or a special hold policy for customers with repeated overdrafts.

2. If it does, review the institution's definition of accounts "repeatedly overdrawn" and determine whether it meets the regulatory definition in section 229.13(d).
3. Determine that the institution returns the account to the institution's normal account status when the account has not been repeatedly overdrawn for a six-month period following the time the account was characterized as repeatedly overdrawn.
4. Review the financial institution's list of customers whose accounts are repeatedly overdrawn. (Note: This list may or may not be the same overdraft list maintained in the ordinary course of business. The institution may maintain a list of recent overdrafts as well as a list of customers whose accounts are repeatedly overdrawn.)
5. Review an account classified as repeatedly overdrawn. Determine if the institution properly classified the account and followed the regulatory procedures outlined in section 229.13(d).
6. Determine the date the account was placed in "repeated overdraft" exception status. Review account statements for the six months before the account was identified as an overdraft exception.
7. Determine whether the institution provided the customer with an exception notice when an exception hold was placed on the account. If it did, review the content of the notice and determine if it meets the requirements of section 229.13(g)(1) or 229.13(g)(3).
8. Determine if notice was given within the required time frames. (§ 229.12(g)(1) or 229.12(g)(3))

Reasonable Cause to Doubt Collectibility (§ 229.13(e))

1. Determine if the financial institution has procedures or a special policy for placing reasonable-cause holds.
2. If it does, determine who initiates reasonable-cause holds.
3. Obtain a list of accounts or checks to which this exception was applied. Review the exception notice given to the customer.
4. Determine if the reason for invoking the exception was reasonable.
5. Review the content of the notice and determine if it meets the requirements of section 229.13(g)(1).
6. Determine if notice was given within the required time frames. (§ 229.13(g)(1))
7. If the institution imposes a reasonable-cause exception hold and does not provide the notice at the time of deposit, determine whether it either discloses the availability of refunds of overdraft and returned-check fees or does not assess these fees when the requirements of section 229.13(e)(2) are met.

Emergency Conditions (§ 229.13(f))

1. Determine if the financial institution has procedures or a special policy for placing emergency-condition holds. If it does, review the institution's procedures for placing these holds.
2. Determine whether the institution invokes this exception only under the conditions specified in section 229.13(f).
3. Determine whether the institution makes the funds available for withdrawal within a reasonable time after either the termination of the emergency or the time at which the deposit would normally be available for withdrawal, whichever is later. (Note: A reasonable period for on-us checks is one business day; for local checks, five business days; and for nonlocal checks, usually six days. (§§ 229.13(h)(3) and 229.13(h)(4))

Miscellaneous Provisions

Special Deposit Slips (§ 229.10(c)(3))

1. Determine if the financial institution requires a special deposit slip for state or local government, cashier's, certified, or teller's checks in order to provide next-business-day availability on the deposits. (§ 229.10(c)(3)(i))
2. If the institution requires a special deposit slip, determine that it does one of the following: (§ 229.10(c)(3)(ii))
 - Provides the deposit slip to its customers
 - Informs its customers of how to obtain and prepare the slips
 - Makes the special deposit slips "reasonably available"

Additional Disclosure Requirements (§ 229.18)

1. Determine if the financial institution displays a notice of its availability policy in a conspicuous place at locations where employees receive consumer deposits. (§ 229.18(b)) (Note: The notice is not required at drive-up windows and night depositories. See commentary to section 229.18(b).)
2. Determine if the institution displays a notice at each of its proprietary ATMs stating that the funds deposited in the ATM may not be available for immediate withdrawal. (§ 229.18(c)(1))

3. If the institution has off-premises ATMs from which funds are not collected more than twice a week, determine if the institution discloses on or at the ATM the days on which the deposits made at the ATM will be considered “received.” (§ 229.18(c)(2))
4. Determine if the institution includes a notice on all preprinted deposit slips that the deposited funds may not be available for immediate withdrawal. (§ 229.18(a))

Payment of Interest—Section 229.14

1. Determine whether the financial institution pays interest as of the date of the deposit or as of the date provisional credit is granted.
2. If the institution pays interest as of the date provisional credit is granted, review the institution’s schedule for provisional credit. (This schedule may be from a Federal Reserve Bank or may be based on the time credit is generally received from a correspondent bank.) Select a NOW account statement and ask the institution to give a detailed explanation of how the interest was calculated.
3. Review the institution’s method for calculating interest on deposits reviewed. Select another NOW account and, using the institution’s procedures for calculating interest, verify that the institution accrues interest as of the date provisional credit is received.

Calculated Availability— Nonconsumer Transaction Accounts— Section 229.19(d)

1. Determine if the financial institution uses a formula for calculating funds availability for nonconsumer transaction accounts.
2. If it does, review a copy of the institution’s formula.
3. Select a large corporate account subject to the formula. Ask the institution to demonstrate how funds are made available to the customer. Determine whether it appears that the formula accurately reflects the type of deposit mix reasonably expected for this type of account holder. (For example, a local grocery store may have 90% of its deposits made up of local check deposits. Therefore, a formula providing a deposit mix of at least 90% availability within two days may be reasonable. A mail order firm, on the other hand, may have a large percentage of nonlocal checks in its check deposits. Therefore, the institution’s formula may allow for lengthier availability schedules.)

Record Retention— Sections 229.21(g) and 229.13(g)(4)

1. Determine that the financial institution retains for two years the notices required when a “reasonable cause” exception is invoked.

II. SUBPART D

EXAMINATION OBJECTIVES

1. Determine the financial institution’s compliance with subpart D notice content and timing requirements (general consumer-awareness disclosures regarding substitute checks and notices that respond to a consumer’s expedited recredit claim regarding a substitute-check error)
2. Ascertain whether the financial institution complies with timing requirements for acting on a substitute-check expedited recredit claim.

EXAMINATION PROCEDURES

Whether a financial institution will or will not function as a “reconverting bank,”¹ the interlinked nature of the payments system virtually guarantees that every financial institution will at some time receive a substitute check that is subject to the provisions of subpart D, the “Check 21” section of Regulation CC. While some financial institutions will rapidly migrate toward electronic check exchange, others will proceed more hesitantly. Regardless, because the Check 21 Act provides that a properly prepared substitute check is the “legal equivalent of the original check for all purposes,” all banks must be prepared to accept a substitute check in place of the original after the act’s effective date of October 28, 2004.

One of a bank’s regulatory compliance obligations is to apprise consumer customers who receive canceled checks with their periodic account statements or who otherwise occasionally receive substitute checks of their rights under the new law through a consumer-awareness disclosure. A bank that provides a substitute check to a consumer must also be prepared to comply with the Check 21 Act’s expedited recredit procedure for addressing errors relating to substitute checks. Even if the customer does not receive actual canceled checks in a monthly statement but instead receives a truncated summary, the individual may eventually receive a substitute check, either in response to a request for a check or a copy of a check or

1. A reconverting bank is the bank that creates a substitute check; if a nonbank creates a substitute check, the reconverting bank is the first bank to transfer, present, or return the substitute check (or the first paper or electronic representation of that substitute check) for consideration.

because a check that the consumer deposited was returned unpaid to the consumer in the form of a substitute check. Some increase in the potential for duplicate posting (substitute check and original) may also involve a degree of consumer education and explanation. The regulation specifies the appropriate timing for the distribution of the consumer-awareness disclosure and also provides model language. Finally, institutions will likely want to train their personnel so that they can adequately convey to customers the impact of this new instrument in the payments system.

General

1. Obtain copies of the documents associated with the financial institution's Check 21 compliance, including but not limited to the following:
 - Consumer-awareness disclosure(s)
 - Sample (test) substitute checks, if available
 - Direct mail correspondence, statement stuffers, and the like, describing Check 21/substitute check implementation to consumer customers
 - Notices relating to expedited recredit claims:
 - Notice of valid claim and refund
 - Notice of provisional refund
 - Denial of claim
 - Reversal of refund
 - Any other relevant documents
2. Identify the individuals within the institution who may have responsibilities associated with Check 21. The following is a non-exhaustive list of such individuals:
 - New-accounts personnel
 - Employee training department
 - Internal auditors, reviewers
 - Deposit operations, bookkeeping
3. Review the institution's training manual, internal audit or similar reports for Regulation CC, written procedures given to employees detailing their responsibilities under the regulation, and similar materials.
4. Determine the training methods used by the institution in conveying specific responsibilities to employees. Are written procedures distributed to employees?

Consumer Awareness— Section 229.57

(Note: Model disclosure language is provided in appendix C of the regulation.)

Determine whether the bank distributes only a single version of its consumer-awareness disclosure or maintains variations of the disclosure to be used depending on the circumstances giving rise to distribution. Each notice should reflect the following:

1. General disclosure content—Determine whether the disclosure notice states
 - That a substitute check is the legal equivalent of an original check and (§ 229.57(a)(1))
 - The consumer recredit rights that apply when a consumer in good faith believes that a substitute check was not properly charged to his or her account. (§ 229.57(a)(2))
2. Timing and distribution—A bank is required to provide its consumer customers with a consumer-awareness disclosure prior to the receipt of a substitute check.
 - For those who receive canceled checks with periodic statements:
 - Existing customers as of October 28, 2004—Determine that the bank provided the disclosure no later than the first regularly scheduled communication with the consumer after October 28, 2004 (for each consumer who is a customer of the bank on that date). (§ 229.57(b)(1)(i))
 - New customers after October 28, 2004—Determine that the bank provided the disclosure at the time the customer relationship was established. (§ 229.57(b)(1)(ii))
 - For those who do not receive canceled checks with periodic statements and who will receive substitute checks only occasionally:
 - Upon customer request for an original check or a copy of a check—Determine that the bank provides the disclosure to a consumer customer who requested an original check or a copy of a check and received a substitute check in response. (§ 229.57(b)(2)(i))
 - Upon customer's receipt of a returned substitute check—Determine that the bank provides the disclosure to a consumer customer of the bank who receives a returned substitute check (at the time the bank provides such substitute check). (§ 229.57(b)(2)(ii))
3. Mode of delivery of information (§ 229.58)—Determine whether the bank employed one of the following in delivering its consumer-awareness disclosure(s) and expedited recredit notice(s):
 - U.S. mail

- Any other means to which the recipient agreed to receive account information, including electronically

Expedited Recredit for Consumers— Section 229.54

1. Determine whether any financial institution customer has raised a Check 21-related claim of loss since the last examination. If yes, review for the following. (At financial institutions at which multiple Check 21-related claims have been raised and resolved, the examiner need only review a sampling sufficient to ensure that the bank's processing is consistent and in compliance with subpart D.)

- Necessary preconditions (consumer must allege all of these)—(§§ 229.54(a)(1)–229.54(a)(4)
 - Was the consumer's account charged for a substitute check that was provided to the consumer? (The consumer need not be in possession of the substitute check at the time of claim submission.)
 - Was the consumer's account not properly charged? (Alternatively, a consumer's account could be properly charged yet still give rise to a warranty claim, for example, in the case of a substitute-check image that is illegible.)
 - Did the consumer suffer a resulting financial loss?
 - Was the production of the original check or a sufficient copy necessary to determine whether or not the consumer's claim was valid?
- Procedural steps for consumer's claim
 - Did the consumer submit a timely claim? (§ 229.54(b)(1))
 - Did the claim contain a description of the claim, a statement and estimate of loss, the reason why the original check or a sufficient copy is necessary, and sufficient information for the bank to investigate? (§ 229.54(b)(2))
 - If the consumer attempted to make a claim but failed to provide all of the necessary information (as listed above), did the bank inform the consumer that the claim was incomplete and identify the information that was missing? (§ 229.54(b)(2)(D)(ii))
 - Was the claim submitted in a form acceptable to the financial institution? Did the bank compute the time for action accurately? (§ 229.54(b)(3))
- Procedural steps for financial institution response—If the financial institution concluded that (1) all necessary prerequisites to the filing of a consumer claim existed and (2) the consumer followed the appropriate steps in filing the claim, verify that the bank provided the following appropriate response:

Claim deemed valid:

In the event of a valid consumer claim, did the bank

 - Recredit the account for the amount of the loss, up to the amount of the substitute check (plus interest, if applicable), no later than the end of the business day after the banking day on which the bank made its determination, (§ 229.54(c)(1)(i))
 - Draft a notice of recredit stating (1) the amount of the recredit and (2) the date on which funds will be available for withdrawal, and (§§ 229.54(e)(1)(i) and 229.54(e)(1)(ii))
 - Send the notice no later than the business day after the banking day on which the bank recredit occurred? (§ 229.54(e)(1))

Claim deemed invalid:

In the event of an invalid consumer claim, determine whether the bank

 - Sent a notice stating that the claim was invalid and included the original check or a sufficient copy, (§ 229.54(e)(2)(i))
 - Demonstrated to the consumer that the substitute check was properly charged (or that the consumer's warranty claim was not valid), and (§ 29.54(e)(2)(ii))
 - Included the information or documents (in addition to the original check), if any, relied upon by the bank in making its determination (or a statement that the consumer may request such). (§ 229.54(e)(2)(iii))

Claim not resolved within initial ten days, pending further investigation:

If the bank could not resolve the claim before the end of the tenth business day after the banking day on which the bank received the claim, determine whether the bank

 - Recredited the consumer's account for the amount of the loss, up to the lesser of the amount of the substitute check or $2,500 (plus interest, if applicable), (§ 229.54(c)(3)(i)(A))
 - Drafted a notice of recredit stating (1) the amount of the recredit and (2) the date on which the funds would be available for withdrawal, (§§ 229.54(e)(1)(i) and 229.54(e)(1)(ii))

- Recredited the consumer’s account for the remaining amount of the loss, if any, up to the amount of the substitute check (plus interest, if applicable), no later than the end of the forty-fifth calendar day after the banking day on which the bank received the claim, and (§ 229.54(c)(3)(ii))
- Sent the notice of recredit no later than the business day after the banking day on which the bank recredit occurred. (§ 229.54(e)(1))

Claim resulting in reversal of recredit:

In some instances it may be necessary for a bank to reverse a recredit made previously to a consumer’s account (plus any interest paid, if applicable). If such a circumstance has occurred, determine whether the bank

- Concluded that the consumer’s claim was not valid and (§ 229.54(c)(4)(i))
- Drafted a notice of reversal of recredit (§ 229.54(e)(3)), accompanied by the following:
 - The original check or a sufficient copy, (§ 229.54(e)(2)(i))
 - Information or explanation to demonstrate to the consumer that the substitute check was properly charged (or that the consumer’s warranty claim was not valid), (§ 229.54(e)(2)(ii))
 - Information or documents (in addition to the original check or a sufficient copy), if any, on which the bank relied in making its determination (or a statement that the consumer can request such), (§ 229.54(e)(2)(iii))
 - A description of the amount of the reversal, including both the amount of the recredit and the amount of interest paid on the recredited amount, if any, being reversed, and (§ 229.54(e)(3)(i))

- The date on which the bank made the reversal. (§ 229.54(e)(3)(ii))
- Sent the notice no later than the business day after the banking day on which the bank made the reversal (§ 229.54(e)(3))
- Availability of recredited funds—Under circumstances detailed above, when the financial institution determined that it was appropriate to recredit its consumer customer’s account, determine whether the bank took the following actions:
 - Next day availability—Did the bank make any recredited amount available for withdrawal no later than the start of the business day after the banking day on which the recredit was provided? (§ 229.54(d)(1))
 - Safeguard exceptions—If necessary for reasons of (1) new-account status, (2) overdrawn-account status, or (3) well-reasoned suspicion of fraud, did the bank invoke its right to delay immediate availability of recredited funds? If so, was the delay invoked because the bank had not yet determined the validity of the claim? Were the funds made available no later than the business day after the banking day on which the final determination was made or the forty-fifth calendar day after the bank received the claim, whichever occurred earlier? (§ 229.54(d)(2))
 - Overdraft fees—If the bank chose to invoke its right to delay immediate availability of recredited funds, did it refrain from imposing an overdraft fee until the appropriate five-day period had elapsed? (§ 229.54(d)(3))

Regulation CC Examination Checklist

General Operations

Date of Deposit

- | | | |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|----|
| 1. Does the bank consider every day except Saturday, Sunday, and federal holidays a “business day”? (§ 229.2(g)) | Yes | No |
| 2. Does the bank consider “banking days” those business days on which an office of the bank is open for substantially all of its business? (§ 229.2(f)) | Yes | No |
| 3. Does the bank have a cutoff for receipt of deposits of 2:00 p.m. or later for bank offices and 12:00 noon or later for ATMs? (§ 229.19(a)(5)(ii)) | Yes | No |
| 4. Does the bank comply with the following rules in determining when funds are considered to have been deposited? | | |
| A. Deposits over the counter or at ATMs are considered deposited when “received.” (§ 229.19(a)(1)) | Yes | No |
| B. Mail deposits are considered deposited when they are received by the mail room of the bank. (§ 229.19(a)(2)) | Yes | No |
| C. Deposits in a night depository, lock box, or similar facility are considered received when the deposits are removed from the facility and are available for processing. (§ 229.19(a)(3)) | Yes | No |
| D. Deposits at an off-premises ATM (not within fifty feet of the bank) that is not serviced more than twice a week are considered received as of the date the deposits are removed from the ATM by the bank. (§ 229.19(a)(4)) | Yes | No |
| 5. Does the bank consider deposits made on a nonbanking day to have been received no later than the next banking day? (§ 229.19(a)(5)(i)) | Yes | No |
| 6. When funds must be available on a given “business day,” does the bank make the funds available at the later of 9:00 a.m. or the time the bank’s teller facilities (including ATMs) are available for account withdrawals? (§ 229.19(b)) | Yes | No |
| 7. If the bank limits cash withdrawals, does it make $400 available for cash withdrawals no later than 5:00 p.m. on the appropriate business day (second day for local checks, fifth for nonlocal checks) following the day of deposit? (§ 229.12(d)) | Yes | No |

Required Next-Day Availability

- | | | |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|----|

- | | | |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|----|
| 40. If the bank invokes the large-deposit rule, does it do so for only that portion of the aggregate local and nonlocal check deposits that exceeds $5,000 on any one banking day? (§ 229.13(b)) | Yes | No |
| 41. Does the bank refrain from applying this exception to deposits made in cash, to deposits made by electronic payment, or to checks that must receive next-day availability under section 229.10(c)? (See commentary to section 229.13(b).) | Yes | No |
| 42. Does the bank provide customers with a written notice of the longer delay? (§ 229.13(g)(1)) | Yes | No |
| Is the notice (§ 229.13(g)(2)) | | |
| A. Provided at the time of the deposit, when the deposit is received in person by an employee of the bank or | Yes | No |
| B. Mailed on or before the first business day after the day the bank learns of the facts giving rise to the exception | Yes | No |

Redeposited Checks (§ 229.13(c))

- | | | |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|----|
| 43. Does the bank refrain from applying the redeposited exception to the following? | | |
| A. Checks that are returned because an indorsement is missing and are subsequently indorsed and redeposited (§ 229.13(c)(1)) | Yes | No |
| B. Checks that were returned because they were postdated but are not postdated when redeposited (§ 229.13(c)(2)) | Yes | No |
| 44. Does the bank consider the day the check was redeposited to be the day of deposit when determining when funds must be made available for withdrawal? (commentary to section 229.13(c)) | Yes | No |

- | | | |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|----|
| 45. Does the bank impose longer holds for depositors who have a history of overdrafts? | Yes | No |
| 46. Does the bank invoke the repeated-overdraft exception only when the account balance has been negative (or would have been negative had checks or other charges been paid) | | |
| A. Six or more times during the preceding six months or (§ 229.13(d)(1)) | Yes | No |
| B. Two or more times during the preceding six months, if the amount of any negative balance would have been $5,000 or more (§ 229.13(d)(2)) | Yes | No |
| 47. Is this practice articulated in the bank's written policy and initial disclosure statement? (§ 229.16(a)) | Yes | No |
| 48. When the bank imposes the longer delay, is the depositor notified of the reason, in writing, at the time of deposit? If not, is a notice mailed on or before the first business day after the day of the deposit or the day the bank learns of the facts giving rise to the exception? (§ 229.13(g)) | Yes | No |
| 49. Does the bank return the account to the normal availability schedule when the account is no longer repeatedly overdrawn? (Note: Banks may use this exception for six months after the last overdraft that made the depositor eligible for the repeated-overdraft exception. See checklist item 46.) (§ 229.13(d)) | Yes | No |

- | | | |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|----|
| 50. Does the bank refrain from applying the reasonable-cause exception to the following? (§ 229.13(e)(1)) | | |

| B. U.S. Postal Service money orders | Yes | No |
| C. State and local government checks | Yes | No |
| D. On-us checks | Yes | No |
| 51. When the bank invokes a reasonable-cause exception, does it provide the customer with a written notice of exception at the time the deposit is made, if the deposit is made in person to an employee of the bank? (§ 229.13(g)(1)(ii)) | Yes | No |
| 52. If the deposit is not made in person to an employee of the bank, or if the hold is placed because of information learned subsequent to the receipt of the deposit, does the institution mail the exception notice to the customer? (§ 229.13(g)(1)(ii)) | Yes | No |
| 53. Does the bank retain a copy of each reasonable-cause exception notice, along with a brief statement of the facts that led to the hold, for a period of two years? (§ 229.13(g)(4)) | Yes | No |
| 54. Does the depository bank refrain from invoking the reasonable-cause exception on the basis of the race or national origin of the depositor or the class of the check? (§ 229.13(e)(1)) | Yes | No |
| 55. Does the bank refrain from assessing a fee for any subsequent overdraft, returned check, or other unpaid charge (or advise customers of their right to a refund of such fees, and refund the fees upon request) if all of the following conditions are met? | | |
| A. The depository bank extended the availability period on the basis of its belief that the check was uncollectible (§ 229.13(e)(1)) | Yes | No |
| B. The depositor was not provided with the written notice required by section 229.13(g)(1) at the time of deposit (§ 229.13(e)(2)) | Yes | No |

- | | | |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|----|
| C. The overdraft or return would not have occurred if the availability period had not been extended (§ 229.13(e)(2)(i)) | Yes | No |
| D. The deposited check was finally paid by the paying bank (§ 229.13(e)(2)(ii)) | Yes | No |
| 56. Does the exception notice tell the customer where to direct a request for a refund of the overdraft fees? (§ 229.13(e)(2)) | Yes | No |

Emergency Conditions (§ 229.13(f))

- | | | |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|----|
| 57. Does the bank refrain from imposing emergency-condition holds on checks subject to next-day availability under section 229.10(c)? (commentary to § 229.13(f)) | Yes | No |
| 58. Does the bank invoke the emergency-conditions exception only in the following circumstances and when the bank has exercised necessary diligence as circumstances require? | | |
| A. An interruption of communications or computer or other equipment (§ 229.13(f)(1)) | Yes | No |
| B. Suspension of payments by another bank (§ 229.13(f)(2)) | Yes | No |
| C. War (§ 229.13(f)(3)) | Yes | No |
| D. An emergency condition beyond the control of the bank (§ 229.13(f)(4)) | Yes | No |
| 59. Does the bank make funds available for withdrawal no later than a reasonable period after the emergency has ended or within the time period established by the temporary and permanent schedules, whichever is later? (§ 229.13(h)(3)) (As stated in the commentary to section 229.13(h)(4), a reasonable period is five business days for local checks and six for nonlocal checks.) | Yes | No |
| 60. Does the bank provide customers with a written notice of the longer delay? (§ 229.13(g)(1)) | Yes | No |
| 61. Is the notice provided at the time of the deposit, if the deposit is received in person by an employee of the bank, or is the notice mailed on or before the first business day after the day the bank learns of the facts giving rise to the exception? (§ 229.13(g)(1)(ii)) | Yes | No |

Miscellaneous

Calculated Availability—Nonconsumer Transaction Accounts (§ 229.19(d))

|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|----|
| 62. Does the bank calculate funds availability for nonconsumer accounts on the basis of a sample of the customer's deposits? If it does, obtain a copy of the bank's formula for determining its availability schedule. Review a sample of checks similar to that used by the bank to calculate funds availability and answer the following questions: | | |
| A. Is the sample of checks large enough to accurately use the formula? | Yes | No |
| B. Does the formula accurately represent the average composition of the customer's deposits? | Yes | No |
| C. Does the specified percentage of available funds appear reasonable? (Is a set percentage available the next business day, with remaining funds available according to the customer's deposit mix?) | Yes | No |
| 63. Based on the sample, are the terms of availability for the account equivalent to or more prompt than the terms outlined in the regulation? | Yes | No |

Payment of Interest

Review a copy of the bank's availability schedule for check deposits credited through the Reserve Bank or its correspondent bank. Determine the time that the bank receives provisional credit for check deposits.

64. For each interest-bearing transaction account offered by the bank (for example, NOW accounts and ATS accounts), does the bank begin to accrue interest on the funds deposited no later than the business day on which the bank receives provisional credit for the funds? (§ 229.14)

Yes No

Regulation CC

Workpaper Appendix for Districts with Banks Located outside the Continental U.S.

For deposits at offices located outside the continental United States, availability may be extended one day under certain strictly defined circumstances and for limited types of deposits. If a check is deposited at a bank office in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, or the U.S. Virgin Islands and the paying bank is not located in the same jurisdiction, a one-day extension is permitted for deposits other than those that must be available on the next business day. (Note: This extension applies only to check deposits at bank offices located outside the continental United States. Check deposits received at a bank inside the continental United States but drawn on a bank located outside the continental United States, such as one in Alaska or Hawaii, are not granted an extension.)

1. For offices located in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands, does the bank extend availability for check deposits drawn on banks in other states? (§ 229.11(e)(1)) Yes No
2. If yes,
 - A. Is the extension limited to checks drawn on banks in a different state? (A Hawaiian bank, for example, could receive a “local” check drawn on a bank in Honolulu or a bank in San Francisco. Only the San Francisco check may be delayed.) (§ 229.12(e)(2)) Yes No
 - B. Is the extension limited to one day? (§ 229.12(e)) Yes No
