Dear Email comments,

Credit card companies have found so many creative ways to squeeze money from their borrowers, often with rule-changes that are enacted without notice (or buried in teeny legalese print). I recently had one credit card jump to 29% interest (from 9%)! Yes, I'm making payments, but I was late twice. It boggles my mind.

Please, do something to help protect the consumer. Don't let the credit card companies recoup their sub-prime load loses through credit card rapes.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Perry
