Subject: Truth in Lending

dear sirs or madams, it would be a true travesty if the truth in lending regulations that have served american consumers so well for the past 23 years were changed solely to benefit lenders. any changes, almost by definition, would remove critical protections just so that industry can have more leeway in the ways that it can take more of our money and not be held liable for wrong doing or misleading the public. if you cave in to pro-industry change in these regulations, I hope that realize that you are purely craven and are probably getting something in return from the lending industry.

sincerely,
