

From: "Delisle, David J (MHS)" <David.Delisle@merrimack.k12.nh.us> on 10/01/2007 01:55:02 PM

Subject: Truth in Lending

I feel that it is grossly unfair for credit card companies to raise rates on an account that is overdue if it is not with their card. It is incredibly self serving that these usurious rates can be charged in a "piggy-back" situation. Additionally, raising rates as inquiries are made for additional funding based on unsolicited materials is unfair.

It is time that these credit card companies are reigned in!

Dave DeLisle

Bedford, N.H. 03110