Regulating the credit card companies Docket No. R-1286

It is about time that someone did something about the credit card companies underhanded way of doing things. There rates are outrageous. Rates that they are allowed to charge should be capped. What they do is not moral and not honest. Someone needs to get them under control. Congress needs to regulate and over see these loan sharks. The American people vote for representatives to represent them, but the credit card companies have been allowed to run amok by our government.
