Please step up to the plate and take a shot at outlawing the unfair trade practices in use by credit card companies and banks. It seems like every time I turn around, I'm being hit with another fee. While you're at it, could you take a look at companies who charge from ten to twenty dollars to pay a bill online? This seems rather exorbitant to me since the costs of accepting a payment online should be miniscule. Thank you for taking the time to read this.
