Comments:

What banks are being allowed to amounts to the same unconscionable activities the comanies like Exxon were performing. They harm consumers and the economy as a whole and are contributing to the downslide of the recession we are already in. At times like these, we should be helping each other out instead of victimizing each other. We've prevented people from filing for bankruptcy, yet not regulated the companies that assist in driving us there in the first place. This isn't a "something needs to be done" situation - this is a "It must be fixed properly" situation and not by someone who's pockets are being lined by these banks.
