Dear Email comments,

After a Quarter of a century of good credit a computer is telling people over a phone that i have been late 2 times in a row. The 0% goes to 29.99% I of course transfer out but not before they report me to experian for being late when I was actually early. The humans understand but say they are powerless to change the computer generated decision. They suggest building my credit back up. Its a trap they all do which makes them a defacto monopoly. common sense for the people instead of them. no more room to elaborate.

Sincerely,

Mr. allen stone
