Dear Email comments,

I am writing to you to thank you for the proposed rules regarding credit card companies. In my work as a geriatric care manager I saw many of our seniors duped by the unfair practices of the credit card companies. Many seniors live on a tight budget and when the credit card companies increase the interest rates to extreme amounts; they are simply unable to pay. The situation snowballs and the companies make more money. In general, these folks are honest people who want to pay their debt but the companies seek to prevent that with their interest hikes and fees.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Dawn Robinson
