Dear Email comments,

Please work with your colleagues to develop tough laws to eliminate unfair credit card practices. The widespread problems that people are having with bait and switch tactics of credit card companies is clearly a national problem that most Americans understand and often experience.

The credit card companies cannot police themselves on this since their management is under tremendous pressure to maximize annual profits and shareholder value. It is your job to set the standards. I am prepared to fully support any elected official who successfully confronts this issue regardless of political affiliation. An absence of good faith and immediate action tells me and perhaps your self where your priorities are. Please take action now.

Sincerely,

Mr. Harold Hendrick
