Federal Reserve Board Email comments

Dear Email comments,

Dear Federal Reserve Board,

Please stop the current atmosphere of greed and abuse among the credit card companies. Their practices of raising interest rates in an uncontrolled manner is only hurting this country's economy even more. We will never be able to stimulate the economy if the only companies being paid are the credit cards. They should be restricted from applying payment to low interest debt first, shortening the time between billing and payment due, and charging interest on debts paid the previous month. The fact that they continue to raise rates on existing balances for no reason is unconscionable. These practices must end to allow our economy to grow and stop this recession.

Sincerely,

Katherine Rottersman
