Dear Email comments,

Dear Sirs,

Why does it seem that the American consumer is being taken advantage of at every juncture? Because we are! If credit wasn't so readily available to everyone, maybe credit card companies would treat the customers they do have if better business practices. Everything to do with business has been reduced to the lowest common denominator. The few have to deal with the bad credit of the many. Please hold credit card companies to a higher standard, and maybe we will make it through the crisis that is our economy.

Sincerely,
Bruce Gott
