Comments:

I was recently a victim by Compass Bank to attempt a double tack on of fees for an inadvertant $2.00 overdraft. They wanted 38.00 intitially, and another 38.00 if the 2 bucks were not replaced in two more days. I went to the bank, made a REAL LOUD stink in their lobby, got everything reversed, they were not happy campers as several patrons closed their accounts on the basis of their treatment of me. Do not allow banks who are thieves to continue doing business. Compass was the one in question here, I know that Suntrust and Bank of America also have these issues, I have first hand experience with them. The banking industry in this country is corrupt and needs to be reeled in. Unfortunately, too many members of Congress are lining their pockets with their shenanigans. Oil companies are also thieves and should be heavily regulated. As a former truck driver, I got sick of the silly regulations that cost me time and money on the road, yet these vital industries are allowed to roll over their clients without end. Not fair... use some backbone and do the right thing for the masses, corruption is corruption, I don't care who is doing it. And all those should pay dearly with the total loss of their jobs, incomes, saving, and homes. Let them eat dirt....
