Comments:

I have been banking with Wells Fargo for about 7 years. The past 2.5-3 years we have had a business account with them. In that 2.5-3 years we have been charged an exorbenant amount in overdraft fees, probably over $5000.00; not all of which were my fault. Last week I was hit with 12 total. It seems that every weekend we end up overdrawn with overdrafts but they don't ever show up till Tuesday: before which time I am unaware of the situation even when I use online banking or the automated teller service. I have never been so confused with any banking system. Our small business (Wells Fargo "the biggest in small business lending") has made it nearly impossable for my family to survive & have signafently contributed to our inability to aquire any kind of financial assistance elseware & offer alturnative. I'am amazed that we have been able to hang on this long. My mortgage almost went to auction because of a fraud claim I started in March this year; only to be told that my time limit was up on the claim. I was unaware that fraud had a statute of limitations. Each time I inquire about bank policies I am told something different. This is unfair & deceptive. I've been robbed by Wells Fargo. What can I do?
