Dear Email comments,

The practices of credit card companies are out of control. Not allowing enough time for payment to be mailed -- even if you pay the day you receive your statement. Tempting you with "cash advance" checks, while hiding the true costs. Even some online sites seem to try to confuse you. Their agreements have grown to page after page of legal terms and confusing paragraphs that most attorneys would have to study to interpret. These practices, among others, are not necessary and need to be stopped.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Darlyne Burns
