Dear Federal Reserve Board Director,

Hi Feds, Back in May, I lost my job living in New York, Queens while banking with Bank of America. Because I lost my job the bank started to bill me 5 dollars a month for not having direct deposit plus all the other fees. At this time i had no money and was moving back to Florida with my parents as a result. I had also used my card a couple of times thinking I had the money but did not because of there messed up online banking! My bank account eventually became -373.00. I recently put some money in to slowly pay them back but today i got a letter in the mail and they said if i do not pay in full that they will close my account and i will not be able to have good relations with any bank. this is completely unfair! at this point i really cant do anything because the minimum wage job i have is feeding me so i can not afford to "feed the bank"!!!
