Comments:

Banks are just outrageous now. They once claimed that it took two weeks for my check to go from Albany, New York to the midwest. Of course, I got a late fee. They agreed to remove it because I am a good customer. It is no longer possible to determine when to mail a payment despite the due date. I believe that they hold checks in the mail room or deliberately post them late. Chase, Citibank, Discover, and Capital One are using a law firm called Rubin and Rothmann in NYC. They are a collection agency that are making people's lives hell by freezing their bank accounts with judgements regardless of the original amount owed. There should be a limit on the amount that they can do this for such as over $5,000 not $500. Otherwise, why do we not go back to debtors prison. Univeral default should be eliminated! These credit cards are always bating people to sign-up and then changing the terms. This is unacceptable. I am sure that bank presidents are going to hell in a hand basket. Rather than bail out people for foreclosures, we should be protecting the truly poor from these banks!
