I am a single parent, homeowner, and have been a customer of Bank of America for 10 yrs. I have a checking, savings, and mortgage accounts with Bank of America. This bank charged me FOUR overdrawn fees of $35 EACH for transactions of the following amounts: $15, $15, $12, and $8.47. When I inquired via online bank representative why wasn't the $150 I have available on my Line of Credit used, the representative said that she did not handle Line of Credit, only Chacking and Savings. This obviously makes no sense as the Line of Credit is directly connected to the Checking accoutn as back up in the event of insufficient funds. This is how people loose their homes, banks set us up to fail.
