To Whom It May Concern, I have been a loan originator and in the industry for the last 9 years and I have watched the "BANKS" and the "GOVERNMENT" screw up the whole system and now instead of punishing the banks, you are trying to punish the loan originators. There is a lot of time and knowledge that goes into originating a loan and loan originators only sell what the bank offers. The main reason for the problem is because the "GOVERNMENT" thought that if you could breath that you should own a home and forced the banks to lend to everyone. Now that the inevitable has happened, which I'm sure Clinton was already warned about you are trying to take a hard earned income away from the loan originators and at the same time punish the people by giving the banks a monopoly to extend credit to whom want. I have a family of 7 and have worked very hard to earn an income in this industry and if it's taken away I find it hard to believe that another company will hire me with a mortgage background so in addition you will have thousands of people out of work and potentially homeless because they were self employed and cannot collect unemployment. If this new law passes it will kick us while we are down scrambling to stay in our home. The "GOVERNMENT" needs to not do any additional damage, they have done enough already! Regards, Kelle Mortensen
