Passage of this amendment will again result in unintended consequences. If congress squeezes the bank fees balloon on one side it will just move the bulge to another area. You all know this and should be ashamed of yourselves. It makes one wonder if the banks indeed actually lobbied for this new law. After all, they will make more profit from it than if you left debit card fees alone. Let there be a real free market in this country and we will be fine.

Spend some time touching the third rail if you are true Americans. This is the only way to avoid national bankruptcy. I fear you have no intestinal fortitude to ever do the right thing. Perhaps you all need to have a couple hundred million voters vote you all out if you do not take care of our massive debt you chose to create.
