Shortly after the arrival of the AMCs I shut down my (residential appraisal) business. I was just getting started but with the loss of 40% of the fee and additional requirements (more work for less money), it wasn't worth it to continue. I've since moved over to commercial but the downward fee/commission split - is so bad, I'd probably be better off flipping burgers by the time I count up all my hours (I'm a trainee with a huge learning curve.) I'm looking for better work but we all know what the employment situation is like!
