Comments:

I am totally against any law or rule restricting seller financing, essentially as now practiced. It would be detrimental to all forms of business activity. Seller financing has been very successfully going on for literally hundreds if not thousands of years. This is like a basic right of commerce! To even think about shackling it with politically motivated rules is absolute nonsense! Whoever is promoting and asking for this business killing concept doesn't understand the real world of business. Please, please do not restrict and hamper this vital business activity.!
