

From: George Anderson
Subject: Incentive-Based Compensation

Comments:

I am writing to let you know how I feel about the outrageous rewards the bank executives are reaping after causing the largest loss of personal wealth in the history of our nation.

I think it is disgusting and a crime. I think all the money lost by average Americans should be repaid by the banks and financial enterprises to the government to pay down some of the national debt principal.

To prevent further loss and lowering of the standard of living for the middle class, support taxes on bonuses in the form of stock options at the same rate as income. Take this and any other action to reduce risk taking by Wall Street.

Thank you for considering my comment,

George Anderson