

From: Todd Clay
Subject: Incentive-Based Compensation

---

Comments:

It turns out that deregulation (which is just regulation in favor of corporations) has had a dreadful impact on our economy. But the biggest impact affecting our currency began back in 1913 when the control was given to the newly created Federal Reserve to print our currency. This practice must be returned at once to the Treasury.

The very fact that a non-government or private corporation is controlling our currency speaks volumes on your self-interest and the added arrogance of the extravagant bonuses on top of the manipulation of our currency is shameful.

To add even more insult your repeated meddling in market interest rates and the games that are played with trading paper money for overnight profits is downright disgusting and has caused repeated destruction of any middle or lower class wealth that may have been created in our hard assets, social programs or the stock market even though it was mostly through forced participation.

Through back doors of bailouts, devaluation and inflation the temporary wealth felt by anyone but the upper class has been handed back over to the elite to make them whole while everyone else suffers; all while consolidating and making the very perpetrators larger than ever exacerbating the problem that has been named as the problem of "to big to fail". All managed through carefully directed rumors to eliminate competitors just as it was back when the Federal Reserve was trying desperately to establish itself in the US. This time the stakes were much higher and the buyouts of failed institutions much cheaper as a percent of their true value.

Not only have you perpetrated these frauds on the American public but you've been front and center in insuring that Americans see no better life than one in which they buy a house for $200,000 and actually pay $350,000 or a car for $25,000 and pay $32,000. This has all become a necessity because of a devaluing dollar and a decaying standard of living. We've been led to the trough and taught to drink the kool-aid.

Your judgement day will come and you will be held accountable for all the people that lost their lives, homes and savings because of your poor oversight or should I say your intentional lack of oversight.

"Give me control of a nation's money supply, and I care not who makes its laws"
- Mayer Amschel Rothschild

Regards,

Todd Clay