I've lost faith in the integrity of the monetary system of this country. I've lost faith in the capacity of the country's political system to solve the monetary problems. I think the corruption is profound, deep, and abiding. I think the consequences we face in the next couple years are grave.

I'm interested in how communities can deal with a post-dollar America. I'm starting to work on projects that could resolve the problem and provide an improved system. I don't know if I'll succeed in replacing what you guys run, but I'm confident that whatever I come up with will be better than the mess you're making.

But, you know, you guys keep expletive deleted that chicken. Maybe you'll get some eggs.
