Your comment: I am against the new format and the Federal Reserve Bank cooperating with illegal spying on financial transactions which, at the minimum, violates the 5th Amendment of the Constitution. You cannot justify violating everyone's privacy and sovereignty in order to catch a few who move funds originating from criminal activity. Moreover, what about the transfer of funds by federal agencies conducting criminal activity? What about major banks who have recently been fined for criminal manipulation in the futures markets? What about criminal activity by Federal Reserve Board member themselves which we have recently seen. Fraud, corruption, and violation of citizen's rights needs to stop and you stop by drawing a line somewhere. This is it. Before you start to use crime as an excuse to turn what's left of the United States into a dystopian novel, try cleaning your own house of corruption and crime before you use it as a pretext to commit more criminal acts by violating people's rights to privacy and their funds when no crime has been committed.
