Micro Report Series Description

Series Mnemonic
SUMD

Series Name
Summary of Deposits; FDIC 8020/05
Summary of Deposits, SOD; FDIC89
Summary of Accounts and Deposits

Starting and Ending Date
June 30, 1966
Continuing

Frequency
Annually, as of June 30th.
(Prior to June 30, 1973, reported biannually)

Reporting Panel
All banks, branches, and facilities.
Approximately 47,000 offices.

Major Changes to Reporting Panel
None

Data Mode
One-day figure
Thousands of dollars

Data Availability
Six months after the report date

Major Series Changes
Beginning June 30, 1988, one item was added to include both transaction and nontransaction accounts, and one item was deleted. This item "Public Funds" is now included in the item "All Other".

Beginning June 30, 1984, three items were added and five items were deleted to conform to the new Call report revisions for March 31, 1984.

Beginning June 30, 1982, the FDIC reverted to a format similar to that used in 1976. Also savings banks reported on the same form as the commercial banks.
Beginning June 30, 1981, two formats were used, one for the head office and the other for branches. The head office format has a deposit size breakdown similar to the format used in 1970. The branch format does not have a size breakdown.

Beginning June 30, 1980, the FDIC reverted to a format similar to that used in 1975. Also mutual savings banks will report on a separate form.

Beginning June 30, 1972, the FDIC reverted to a format similar to that used in 1958.

Beginning June 30, 1970, two formats were used, one for the head office and the other for branches. The head office format had a greater deposit size breakdown than the format used for branches. (The branch format was restricted to deposit accounts less than $100,000 and those greater than $100,000.) See the table in the Glossary section of Volume 1, with tape format, for deposit size breakdowns available each year.

Confidentiality
Summary of Deposits data are available on the FDIC website.