Check writing has been an American institution since 1762. Even though electronic transactions are the majority not everyone is on board with that. I am not an on line supporter at all. I have exclusively payed my bills by checks since 1975. It's a discriminatory proposal for people of preference. My elderly father prefers hard copies of everything. I assume most of the elderly would object to this proposal and might not even own technical equipment or be willing to learn ! Not to mention the disabled

We as Americans have no rights or freedoms anymore. The decisions of the government are passed into laws without any regard to the rights of people.
