As someone who has seen platforms become debanked for just selling products, I believe the Mastercard/VISA monopoly has hurt the market and I believe the Fair Access to Banking Act should be law since these corporations are getting in the way of companies doing business with consumers acting like some sort of pseudo government agency and undermining the United States of America. As adults of our own agency, we don't need corporations telling us how we spend our money. It should be a human right to spend what we earn our money on without some monopoly telling us how to do business.
