Banks accepted my money as green when I deposited it into my bank account. They should not be allowed to devalue my money by placing additional limits on how it may be spent. If they are allowed to do so, then the public should also have a direct say in how the institution is allowed to handle the money they place into it. Corporations and institutions (that are not the United States Government) are overreaching and trying to establish soft national policies that strictly benefit their own organizations, not the public. Any law that would allow this behavior to continue should be struck down.
