Banks and credit card companies should not have a blanket say over what individuals do with their money. Having the power to decide that based on 'reputation' is a weak and dangerous excuse, as it can easily be leveraged for nefarious means to control who is and is not able to live in this country. If a person is paying for something that is legally created with no harm done to any individuals (whether physical, mental, or any other way), then it should be no business of the banks, payment processors, or their shareholders.
