Banks and other such entities should have absolutely no right and no say in how I spend my money. I work for it, it is mine and I am an adult who has every right to spend my hard earned money on whatever I please. To say that a bank can refuse what I spend my own money on is beyond ridiculous. If we are old enough to open a bank account and earn our income, then we are old enough to spend it on what we please, we do not need banks and other such entities acting like nosey parents telling us what we can and cannot do, it is insulting to be treated like toddlers in this manner and this isn't even mentioning how something as simple as an LGBTQ+ item, no matter how innocent (think a t-shirt or lanyard with a trans flag), can be banned and labeled as NSFW or "inappropriate" and therefore be inaccessible for purchasing. All this does is further alienate marginalized groups. If the concern is that truly illegal things would be purchased, THERE ALREADY EXIST LAWS FOR SUCH THINGS. We do not need to be babysat by banks!!
