

ANONYMOUS

Proposal and Comment Information

Title: Prohibition on Use of Reputation Risk or Other Supervisory Tools to Encourage or Compel Banking Organizations to Engage in Politicized or Unlawful Discrimination, R-1884

Comment ID: FR-2026-0002-01-C8174

Submitter Information

Name: Anonymous

Submitted Date: 03/12/2026

Allowing payment processors and banks to strongarm artists and decide what is and is not allowed, when there are few to none alternatives to pay, kills websites and allows for an alarmingly few people who do not have to abide by the same TOS as the people who use the site in question; pornbot ads are a good example of this. You can spit on most popular sites now and find a pornbot ad; even if the site in question is against its users posting pornography or "explicit material" - material which often happens to include queer material or political material that isn't far right. If you allow a small amount of people to lord financial capital over their users, with no viable alternative... that's a monopoly. And we all know what happens when monopolies go unchecked as they've been, for too long.