I am a physician and high net worth individual who is interested in making sure the financial system is accessible and fair to all individuals regardless of net worth, background, socioeconomic status or access to financial services. Bitcoin is a serious tool of empowerment for people from all backgrounds and its treatment in the current regulatory environment does not reflect this reality, its maturity as an asset or its potential and punishes any institutions that would care to hold it. This should be rectified and the United States should continue to strive to remain the premier jurisdiction globally for financial opportunity, wealth accumulation capital formation and financial innovation as well as equal opportunity for all economic participants.
